Mrs. Asquith at Niagara Try a Fish Pond Lincoln Would Laugh Hiram Johnson Says—

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1922, by Star Co.)

Mrs. Asquith went to Niagara from Buffalo by motor. The driver landed her before a gigantic, very ugly building. "Why do you bring me here?" she asked. "I thought you wanted to see the power plant, of course," replied the American chauffeur. It never occurred to him that the lady from across the water would go away out there just to see the falls—he was used to them.

Mrs. Asquith was horrified at the building built to utilize the current's power. She will get over that when she thinks about it a while longer.

Those great buildings, utilizing the falling water, foretell man's emancipation from hard labor.

Big feudal castles on the hilltops meant protection for the serfs in the valleys. The baron in his castle kept away marauders and killers. The great power plants at the edge of Niagara are modern feudal castles. Benevolent, supplying energy to machines that work and free men from slavery.

To turn falling water into lightning and make that lightning do your work is far more important than a pretty waterfall.

If you are tired of chicken farming, Belgian hares, Angora goats, etc., try a fish pond. The government fisheries department reports that you can raise more pounds of fish than of cattle to the acre.

The record is: Cattle, 725 pounds to the acre; fish (per pond acre), 749 pounds. Probably a small backyard experiment wouldn't pay, but a pond or lake of an acre or more with an all-year supply of water running in and out, might be made extremely profitable—the government would help you with advice and young fish eggs.

The King of England is selling his yacht: English people don't want to keep it going. He marries his daughter to a rich commoner; England is a little tired of supporting royal princesses.

Many Kings have gone out of business entirely. The richest noblemen of England are giving up city palaces, great country estates.

This land of democracy and simplicity is talking about buying palaces in the capitals of Europe that its "democratic" ambassadors may be properly housed at the public expense.

This is an age of economy. The soldiers that lost their jobs and fought for the United States are told that the government really can't afford to give them a bonus—although the Republican party promised it in its platform.

A first-class ambassador sent abroad gets a salary of $17,500. What would Abraham Lincoln, very respectable Republican, say to such an ambassador if he came asking the people to buy him a house to live in? He would tell the ambassador to pay his room rent out of the $17,500.

That is presumably what President Harding will tell the ambassadors. If they can't live abroad for $17,500 they might stay home. Plenty of patriots are ready to take the job at the salary and board and lodge themselves.

The chief of our ambassadors, that usually sterling Democrat, and temporary Republican, George Harvey, was born at Peacham, Vermont, in a house that you could haul away on a two-ton truck. He would laugh at the suggestion of a palace.

Many in the United States will be interested to see what the Republican party decides to do about it.

Senator Hiram Johnson of California said of the coal strike yesterday: "It's a plain strike now, but wait until the men get hungry and their families are in want. It is dangerous to treat in an offhand manner six hundred thousand workers."

It is still more dangerous to allow six hundred thousand men, and six million whom they influence, to get firmly fixed in their minds the idea that this country has one kind of law for the powerful, another kind of law for the weak.

The existence of such ideas, especially with judicial injunctions to give them strength, is dangerous. When the miners wanted to strike in 1919, a Federal judge enjoined them. He enjoined everybody "from issuing any messages of encouragement or exhortation to striking miners." He forbade "issuance or distribution to miners and mine workers, of so-called strike benefits, or sums of money previously accumulated, to assist such striking miners and mine workers to subsist while striking."

That injunction killed the strike; the mine owners didn't want it and it didn't happen.

The miners will wonder after a while, and others will wonder why the government that had so much power then has none now. Governments have power when they want to have it.

Night Gown Party Figures in Morrill Divorce

SUMMONS CLARK GIRL'S FRIEND

SMASHED DOOR, SAW WIFE, SAYS HUSBAND

Tells of Visit He and Detectives Made and of Seeing Chase

Shattering the door of a Warwick road apartment with a sledge hammer, Leon G. Morrill, wealthy Brookline clubman, discovered his wife, Mrs. Florence R. Morrill, clad only in a nightgown, and Seth K. Chase, former statistician for Lee, Higginson & Co., according to testimony in the Dedham Superior Court today.

Morrill, who occupied the witness stand at his divorce hearing, declared he had gone to the apartment with two private detectives, named Lyons and Kenney.

Discovery of his wife's name made late at night on August 4, 1921, Morrill said.

When Morrill and the detectives arrived at the apartment house they found it in darkness, he said. They went to a rear courtyard and waited.

BROKE DOOR DOWN.

Instantly they made for the stairway and ascended to the hallway outside the entrance to the apartment.

"Lyons was carrying a sledge hammer," said Morrill. "I took it from him and broke in the door with one smash. We entered and

SCANDAL IN POLICE TESTS

Detective Sergeant and Two Civil Service Clerks Resign

A big scandal in the Boston police department, which also involves two employes of the Civil Service Commission, came to light today when it was announced from the office of the new police commissioner, Herbert A. Wilson, that Detective Sergeant Albert W. Carnes of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation had resigned under fire.

The two Civil Service employes mentioned in connection with the affair and who, it was said at the commission's offices today, had been "allowed to resign" last Saturday, are John McMasters and Frederick Thomas, both clerks. McMasters has been a year and Thomas three years with the commission, and both held excellent characters.

On Saturday, March 25, and the following Tuesday, between two and three hundred patrolmen and sergeants of the police department gathered at various localities in the city to take examination for promotion to

Supreme Court Justice Files Answer to Charge of Official Misconduct

Justice Edward P. Pierce of the State Supreme Court today filed his answer with the Legislature to the charges against him in the petition pending in that body for his removal on the grounds of official misconduct.

The justice denied all allegations of misconduct; denied he sought to influence the ruling of Master Charles S. Hill in the settlement of the estates of the Wabun Rose Conservatories and the Henry Woods Sons Co., and denied he interfered with either Joseph C. Pelletier or William J. Shanahan, counsel for the claimants.

It is charged in the removal petition that Pierce accepted gifts of flowers, firewood and groceries from Attorney W. Edwin Ulmer, who was counsel for the companies in the liti-

Soup Kitchens for Strikers Opened in Lawrence

Lawrence, April 5.—Two soup kitchens were opened here today for the textile strikers. One was under the auspices of the Victory Club and the other was opened by the American Federation of Textile Workers' Union in Loomfixers' Hall. There were few applicants for food.

A fair day will be held Saturday to collect funds for the strikers.

SANBORNVILLE, N. H., FIRE CAUSES $85,000 LOSS

Sanbornville, N. H., April 5.—The shoe factory operated by the Hickam Shoe Company of Lynn, Mass., was destroyed by fire today with a loss estimated at $85,000. Spontaneous combustion is believed to have caused the fire, which started on the upper floor of the three-story structure. The building was owned by the Wakefield Slipper Company. Eighty operatives were employed.

$60,000 FIRE RAZES LUDLOW, VT., TOWN HALL

Ludlow, Vt., April 5.—The Town Hall was destroyed by fire today with a loss estimated at $60,000. The blaze, starting in a rubbish heap in the basement, put the fire alarm out of order and allowed the flames to gain headway. Probate office records were destroyed, but the post-office and a grocery store in the building were saved.

Back Bay Man to Be Questioned About Death of Beauty From Poison

C. Harry McDuffie, member of the exclusive Tennis and Racquet Club, and former friend of Pauline Virginia Clark, will be in witness at the inquest tomorrow into her death and that of Otto Haldor Larsen.

McDuffie, who severed his relations with the girl when he found her in the company of Larsen, has received a summons and will be called on to tell all he knows about the life of Miss Clark.

Despite the fact he raced to contribute to the young woman's support sometime ago, it is known that McDuffie still cherished considerable affection for her. It is said that he forwarded money to her mother Mrs. Sarah Herrick, with which she made the journey from Jamaica, where she was employed in a hotel.

SEVERAL WITNESSES.

McDuffie will be one of nearly a dozen witnesses who will be on hand when the inquest starts in the Superior Court lobby at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow. The others will include those who were present at the fatal party in Miss Clark's apartments. Medical Examiner G. H. Magrath, the two physicians who were summoned when the girl took poison, Dr. E. F. Bowman of No. 242 Newbury street, Captain Thomas Goode of the Back Bay police station, the policeman who was sent out to find Larsen, and Inspector James A. Devaney, who prepared the evidence for the inquest.

News of the summonsing of "Harry" McDuffe, as he is known, created surprise in Back Bay and financial circles. It had been understood his friendship for the girl had been secret and that he would not be called.

McDuffie makes his home at the Tennis and Racquet Club, and is said to be possessed of a considerable fortune derived from holdings in mills.

MET YEARS AGO.

He is equally well known in Boston and New York, where his generosity with pretty women has made him extremely popular in certain circles.

McDuffie became acquainted with Pauline Clark some years ago. At that time she was quite young and her freshness and charm made a strong appeal to the clubman.

A short time after their meeting the girl was installed in a luxurious apartment, and became the recipient of many gifts, both money and jewels, which made her the envy of her women friends. Pauline became known as an "exquisite" dresser and her apartment was so luxuriously furnished as to form a fitting setting for her.

In the course of time the girl moved to Newbury street, where she acquired an automobile, and began to entertain students at gay parties, McDuffie was a frequent visitor, but it was noted he was never present when the students were.

Miss Clark was said to receive a monthly check to cover her rent of $125, and the girl's other bills, except those at modistes, were also taken care of. Pauline obtained a great deal of credit at the exclusive shops where women's specialties are dealt in, and these bills were never settled. Claims amounting to $2,000 are still extant, it is said. Some of these creditors, whose claims totalled $1000, were represented by Attorney George D. Baker, who brought suit against the girl in February last, a day or two after she had disposed of her automobile.

It was shortly before this time that McDuffie is said to have entered the apartment unexpectedly and found Pauline with Otto Haldor Larsen, the Norwegian student at Technology, who later gave her the poison with which to take her life and then committed suicide.

There was a scene and McDuffie left the apartment, never to return. The girl's allowance was cut off, and she became addicted to over-indulgence in liquor. On several occasions Miss Clark is said to have been on the verge of delirium tremens and was treated by Dr. Edward F. Bowman, who has an office in the same apartment building.

Slice Out of Life; Husband Cut Up, Pair Make Up

A slice out of life, a novelist would call this:

Mrs. Catherine Tew was in Roxbury Court today, charged with slashing her husband with a knife.

In court, bandaged, was her husband, Lewis. He had just come from City Hospital, where he had been for two weeks.

The big event occurred in their home on Washington street, Roxbury.

"It was all my fault, judge," said the husband. "I came home with a drop too much in me. I struck my wife. She was peeling potatoes. In defending herself I was cut. I'm sorry."

"Case dismissed," said Judge Merritt, and the Tews went out together.

FATHER AND FIVE SONS HACKED WITH AXE

One Boy Dead, Assailant Then Sets Fire to Victims' Home

By International News Service.

Concordia, Kas., April 5.—An unidentified assailant, wielding an axe, attacked the family of L. J. Tremblay in their farmhouse, twenty miles east of here, today.

Tremblay's eldest son, Theodore, eighteen years old, was hacked to death and Tremblay and three of his younger sons were so badly injured they were not expected to live. After striking down his victims with the axe, the murderer set fire to the house and barn.

The barn was destroyed, but the neighbors extinguished the fire in the house after dragging out the dead and unconscious victims.

Only the youngest son, Clem, 8 years old, has a chance to live, physicians stated today. Tremblay and his five sons have kept house on the farm since the death of Mrs. Tremblay several years ago.

When neighbors arrived, attracted by the flames, they found the son Theodore lying on the front steps, his head crushed by a blow from the axe. Theodore's body was found in the yard, horribly mutilated. The other four children were in the house, their bodies beaten and mangled by axe blows from the axe, which was found smeared with blood in the yard.

Bloodhounds were taken to the farm and put also on the trail of the assailants. The boys who are not expected to recover are Albert, 14 years old; Francis, 12, and Alphonse, 10.

WOOLEN FIRM'S AGENT HELD BY CLINTON COURT

Clinton, April 5.—Judge Jonathan Smith in the District Court held James Hall, agent of the New England Woolen Company, in $5,000 for a hearing on Saturday, when he pleaded not guilty to a charge of larceny of $600 worth of wool from the company. Officials of the company stated today that Hall has been receiving a salary and commission which made his pay $18,000 a year.

MINERS' HOMES BOMBED, TWO ARRESTED

W. Va. State Police Are Sent to Scene With Bloodhounds After Explosions

Beckley, W. Va., April 5.—Bombs were exploded in front of the houses of Binny Chickenfeller and James Spade in the little mining village of Kilsythe late last night.

Troopers of the State Police with bloodhounds were hurried to the scene, and arrested John Fodor and Andy Hominez, who denied all knowledge of the crime. They were held today for further investigation.

Chickenfeller and Spade are miners who continued at work for the McKell Coal Company after about one-half the force went out in sympathy with the strike.

The first explosion ripped off the porch of Chickenfeller's house, and the second reduced to junk Spade's automobile, which was standing in front of his house.

Miners' Victory Seen by Coal Wholesaler

Washington, April 5. (By the International News Service.)—At the rate things are going now, the miners will have won their strike within a month, declared George H. Cushing, Managing Director of the American Wholesale Coal Association, in an address before the Association of Credit Men here today.

The miners, Cushing said, are playing "their old, old game" of winning Congressional support to their side and enlisting the power of Congress to whip the operators into line.

Non-Union Coal Men Quit and Close Mines

Brownsville, Pa., April 5.—Two more mines shut down in this district today when about 500 non-union miners joined the ranks of the strikers. Many of the men who quit joined the union. The operations forced to suspend are the Alicia No. 1 mine of the Alicia Coal and Coke Company, and the Bridgeport mine of the E. G. Frick Coke Company.

HELD AFTER ATTEMPT TO SELL SAVINGS STAMPS

Buffalo, N. Y., April 5.—While attempting to sell $300 worth of War Saving stamps in a pawnshop, Fred A. Perkins, fifty-one years old of Chicago, was arrested here. Police said the prisoner admitted he was a member of a gang of four men wanted in connection with the theft of $18,000 worth of War Saving stamps and $170,000 worth of Liberty bonds in Chicago.

Boston-Pacific Hiker Is Arrested as an Army Deserter

Chicago, April 5.—An alleged trans-continental walker waiting in Mayor Thompson's office for a letter to add to those he claimed to have received from every mayor from Boston to this city, was arrested by Department of Justice agents as Private Fred Hart, a deserter from the 30th Infantry. The walker was under the name of John Rose.

FEAR SUICIDE OF PROVIDENCE BANK CLERK

Police Investigating Mysterious Disappearance of Clarence Warrender

Providence, April 5.—An investigation is under way today to clear up the mysterious disappearance of 24-year-old Clarence A. Warrender, a bookkeeper at the Westminster Bank, whose body is believed by his father to lie in the waters off Green's Landing, Warren.

All that is definitely known about his disappearance is that his automobile, containing a suitcase and various personal effects, was found Saturday parked at the landing. His father and other friends believe that he committed suicide by drowning himself.

Police and bank officials are not so ready to accept the suicide theory. They declare that his disappearance is due to domestic troubles, and are outspoken in their belief that he is still alive.

His wife appears unperturbed over his absence, saying merely, "I am not worrying." His father, however, on the verge of collapse, insists that his son made away with himself.

Officials at the bank said that Warrender's accounts were in good shape, but he failed to report at the institution last Saturday, the day of his disappearance. He had been criticized on the previous day for an infraction of the bank's rules, they said.

He lisps "Mama" and says "Bye-bye" and all the little words that nineteen-months-old children learn to say.

Why don't you come back?

You'll like Frankie now.

Lynn police have been asked by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children to hunt a Mrs. Carter. She put her baby boy to board with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parkinson of No. 51 Hemper street, East Saugus, more than a year ago. Then she disappeared.

Now the Parkinsons want to find Mrs. Carter. They love Frankie so much they want to adopt him. It is impossible without the mother's permission.

DOUBTS CONGRESS' POWER OVER HARDING

By International News Service.

Washington, April 5.—The controversial question of whether Congress has the right to demand of a President of the United States that he explain his actions was raised in the Senate today by Senator Borah.

Borah raised the issue with regard to the Caraway resolution, which would demand that President Harding explain his shakeup of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Borah doubted that Congress had the right to ask the President this.

"If the President has violated the law there is a way to reach him—impeach him," said Borah.

GUEST AT GAY PARTY FINED AFTER RAID

Auto Dealer Surrenders and Pleads Guilty in Back Bay Revels Case

As an aftermath of the raid on Suite 5, No. 55 Astor street, Back Bay, in which seven young girls and three men were arrested, Frank Grow, an automobile dealer, paid a fine of $10 in Roxbury Court today.

Grow surrendered to the Back Bay police last night, having heard they wanted him on a charge of disturbing the peace. Arraigned before Judge Merritt, he pleaded guilty through his counsel.

His attorney told the court Grow went to the apartment to see two men on business. He was invited to dine, said counsel.

Sergeant Waugh of Station 16 told the court the police received two complaints within an hour and a half of dancing, singing and loud talking in the Astor street apartment.

The police recommended that Grow be fined. He paid the $10.

FOUR ENLISTED MEN GIVEN PRISON TERMS

An army court today passed sentences on a corporal and three privates. Corporal Alfred A. Zopt was given three years for converting property; Private R. Otto Douglas, two years for wilful disobedience. Privates James E. Marker and Peter A. Bedard were given six months each, one for attempted escape from confinement, the other for larceny.

MRS. DAY TELLS OF STRUGGLE WITH BECK BEFORE THE KILLING

FAINTED AS SHOT WAS FIRED

Declares Slain Aviator Had Been Perfect Gentleman Until Night of Tragedy

By the Associated Press.

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 5.—Mrs. Jean P. Day, wife of the oil operator and attorney who shot and killed Lieutenant-Colonel Paul Ward Beck, today gave for the first time her version of the killing. She was under the care of a nurse.

"Beck visited our home on numerous occasions," she said. "One time he called when Mr. Day was away. But it was a very brief visit. However, each time he called previous to Monday night, he acted as a perfect gentleman in every respect.

"Coming into our home merely as a friend, and one whom we were glad to see because of his geniality, we greatly enjoyed having him, inasmuch as he was brilliant and an acceptable addition to any company.

"Early Tuesday morning, after Mr. Day left to take the other guests home, he seized me by the wrists and threw one arm around me. It was a terrible surprise to me. Nothing like that ever occurred before and I was dumfounded by his action.

"As he held me he made improper proposals to me. I struggled vainly to free myself from his grasp.

WIFE COLLAPSED.

"It was while I was thus struggling that Mr. Day opened the door and walked in. He immediately went upstairs. It seems to me that several minutes must have passed before I heard him coming down the stairs again.

"I remember very distinctly that he was standing on the landing, a pistol in his hand, when I first saw him. I was terrified. I screamed several times.

"After that I remember nothing more. Weakened by the struggle to free myself from Beck's grasp, I felt myself fainting. The whole room swam before my eyes and passed away. The next thing I remember is indistinct. It is that someone was undressing me and telling me to be quiet—that I needed rest.

"What happened after I saw Mr. Day on the landing there I am unable to tell. I just remember that everything around me faded out my eyes and faded out."

Precautions were made today to launch three separate inquiries into the death of Beck.

A civil investigation by county authorities will determine charges to be filed against Day.

A military commission of three army officers, headed by Major Thomas R. Lanthier, will investigate the killing.

A third inquiry got under way when M. F. Meadows, Federal prohibition director for Oklahoma, tried to ascertain whether liquor had a part in the party which preceded the killing of Lieutenant-Colonel Beck.

NO THOUGHT OF MURDER.

"Inasmuch as I cannot say at this time what form the coroner's inquest may take, it is possible that either manslaughter or a murder charge may be filed against Day following the inquest," said County Attorney Hughes.

Day declared he had no thought of killing Beck when he returned to his home and found the army officer struggling with Mrs. Day. His only intent, he said, was to drive Beck from his home. He thought Beck might be armed, he said, and obtained a revolver.

He said the army officer drew back one hand and then he struck Beck on the head with the revolver. The discharge of the weapon was accidental, he avowed. Officials said it appeared the impact of the blow was sufficient to cause death.

Declaring he "loved Beck like a brother," Day asserted he acted as almost any "red-blooded American, who finds his confidence violated, his home invaded and his faithful wife insulted and violently attacked."

GEORGE A. SUMNER

REBELS ARREST LOYAL IRISH OFFICERS

By International News Service.

Dublin, April 5.—The warfare of the Republicans, the mutineers of the Irish Republican Army, against the Irish Free State troops is assuming serious proportions. In addition to numerous ambush attacks against the Free Staters a number of officers and men of the loyal legions have been arrested by the rebels.

It is reported that Richard Mulcahy, minister of defense in the Irish Provisional Government and former chief of staff of the I. R. A., is contemplating a general call to all citizens of the Irish Free State to arm themselves for the protection of their country against the rebels.

The mutineers are still seizing and secreting arms and ammunition in various parts of the country, especially in and around ports where the British army is shipping military stores back to England.

The Irish provisional government is attempting to stop such seizures, but has met with but little success. It is reported from Cork that a considerable quantity of British ammunition was dumped into the sea to prevent seizure by the mutineers.

Two persons who were wounded in a Belfast bomb outrage on Sunday died today. The toll in the fighting between religious factions continued at Belfast. Bandits held up and robbed the Fall Road railway station.

The last fourteen Sinn Fein political prisoners held in Great Britain were released today.

11 CATCHES OF FISH BRING GOOD PRICES

Eleven fishing vessels arrived at the fish pier today, but as their aggregate catches totalled only 267,000 pounds, prices remained high and the skippers sold their fish at fancy figures. Haddock sold up to seven cents a pound and cod up to eight and one-half cents. Captain Christopher Gibbs today divided $10,467 with his crew of twenty-two men, the receipts from the recent trip to Georges bank in the schooner Benjamin A. Smith. The schooner brought in 400,000 pounds of fish, but only 6,000 pounds of salt cod. The men received $240 each as their share.

STEALS SHOES, 65 OF THEM, AND ALL LEFTS

Chicago, April 5.—Two sample cases, stolen from the automobile of T. J. Keeley, a shoe salesman, were found intact today. The cases contained sixty-five shoes, but the robber, police said, was a victim of a trick of the trade. All were for the left foot.

TWICE SHOT IN BANDIT FIGHT IN WALTHAM

Wounded Inspector Drives Off Five Men in Car Who Try to Seize His Money

A gun battle between five bandits in a touring car and George A. Sumner of No. 30 Mount Vernon street, Charlestown, night inspector for the Waldorf Lunch Corporation, was fought out successfully by the inspector on the Waltham-Watertown line today, although he was twice wounded by bullets.

Sumner left Harvard square in Watertown. As he rolled out of the square he noticed prominently in the large touring car, in which were five men, all apparently young and all wearing golf caps, start in his wake.

BULLETS WHIZZ PAST.

In this he failed and, as he drew near the Watertown-Waltham line on Main street, he heard a shot and a shout from the following machine. The bullet whizzed past close to his ear. He stepped on the gas and his car leaped forward.

Immediately the shots and the shouts redoubled, a shower of bullets buzzing about his ears. Sumner ran over the Waltham line the bigger car passed him, swerved in front of his machine, forcing him to halt.

"Get out of that car," one of the bandits yelled to him, "and we won't hurt you."

Instead of obeying Sumner twisted his car sharply and was seeking an opening to escape when three of the men leaped from the bigger car and jumped on the running board of his roadster. He struck at them, but two of them tumbled him over the side of his car into the street.

"Cough up that coin," the leader of the gang ordered. Sumner made no reply. He continued to struggle. At this point one of the bandits fired at close range, the bullet striking Sumner in the left leg.

Though badly wounded and bleeding the inspector kept on fighting and managed to draw his own gun, with which he returned the fire of the bandits who had leaped from him at the sight of his revolver and were shooting again.

FALLS WOUNDED.

Another bullet struck Sumner a hand's breadth below the wound made by the first, and shattering the leg.

Just then, as he was sinking to the ground, a large Standard Oil motor truck, driven by John O'Brien and Mike Grath, who had leaped from in the seat with the driver, came down the street.

Thinking that someone was hurt in an auto smash, O'Brien was slowing down his machine, and just when the leader of the bandits stepped out and flourishing a revolver ordered the truck on, with the command:

"Beat it, you, and keep your mouth shut."

Being unarmed O'Brien and Mc-Grath hastened on and notified the Waltham police.

In the meantime Edward V. Lynch of No. 328 Lincoln street, Allston, who was on his way to Watertown saw the flying truck and the two excited men, and a few moments later came upon Sumner, standing around a store wall, holding his wounded leg, and moaning.

Lynch raced for help and notified the Watertown police, who had just received a call from the Waltham officers, and both police forces went to the assistance of the wounded man.

At the Waltham Hospital it was said that Sumner's hurts, while serious, are not dangerous.

No trace of the bandits or their car has been found by the police.

REUBEN RUSH DIES AT BACK BAY HOME

Reuben Birch, former secretary of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, is dead at his late home, No. 133 Peterboro street, Back Bay, following a short illness of pneumonia. He was fifty-four years old. He leaves a widow and four children. Louise M. Rush, connected with the Americanization Committee at City Hall; Richard Rush, Beverly and Georgia.

$20,000 ARMY LOOT TRADED FOR LIQUOR

Camp Dix, N. J., April 5.—Authorities at Camp Dix today are investigating thefts from army warehouses which involve loot valued at more than $20,000. The supplies, stolen by service men over a period of nearly two years, it was learned, have been traded to former "Buddies" for liquor according to Colonel C. P. Quinlan, provost marshal. Sixteen soldiers have been arrested.

COBB OUT OF GAME FOR SEVERAL WEEKS

Americus, Ga., April 5.—Ty Cobb, the Detroit star, who was injured while sliding to base Tuesday, will be unable to play ball for several weeks, Dr. H. H. Allen stated today. After examining X-ray of Cobb's ankle, taken after an exhibition here last night, Allen said that the fracture was "clean cut."

BOSTON AND NEW YORK TO EXCHANGE DOCTORS

Mayor Curley today approved a recommendation of City Hospital trustees that Dr. Stuart W. Alder, physician at the South Department, go to New York City Hospital for two months to make a study of the methods there of the treatment of infectious diseases. New York will send a city doctor to do likewise in Boston, replacing Dr. Alder.

Young Husband Starts Fight to Clear Dorothy Clark's Name

Determined to clear the name of his pretty seventeen-year-old bride, formerly Dorothy Clark, child dancer and movie actress, of Brookline, nineteen-year-old Karl L. Elms, piano salesman, said today he would take steps to have the girl's mother examined by alienists.

Through this examination Elms will try to prove that the $200,000 damage suit which Mrs. Clark has brought against Herbert Rawlinson, film star, for alleged damages done her daughter was merely the result of a hallucination.

Mrs. Clark charges that Rawlinson committed a serious attack on her daughter three years ago when the girl was but fourteen years old.

"I am Dorothy Elms' husband now, and I intend to see that her name is cleared of this horrible injustice," declared young Elms today. "I will protect my wife against this stigma cast upon her by her own mother. Her name will be cleared. I intend to fight to the end to bring the smiles back to her face."

As a result of the publicity given the case Mrs. Clark is now in a Back Bay hospital suffering from a nervous breakdown. She was further upset by news of her daughter's runaway marriage with young Elms in Nashua, N. H.

"I shall never accept Karl Elms as a son-in-law," she stated with vehemence when told of the wedding. "I can never forgive what he has done this. I cannot understand her acts."

The hasty marriage of the beautiful dancing girl to the youthful salesman added another interesting chapter to a case that has attracted country-wide attention.

The young couple had originally planned to wed here, but at the last minute young Elms decided to take his pretty little bride to Nashua to have the knot tied.

They slipped away yesterday morning and were married in the New Hampshire city yesterday afternoon by Arthur L. Gay, justice of the peace.

Immediately after the ceremony, Dorothy wired Rawlinson of the nuptials and asked him to spread the tidings among the many friends in the movie and theatrical world. She did not notify her mother.

Members of Elms' family today declined to comment on the marriage. It was expected, however, that a statement would later be issued by them.

Young Mrs. Elms has publicly repudiated the charges her mother has made against Rawlinson and declares she will support her husband in his fight to clear her name of the stigma these charges have brought upon her.

Tells Why He Waived 5-Day Law for Elms

Nashua, N. H., April 5. — The waiving of the five-day law for the marriage of Dorothy Clark, dancer and Karl L. Elms, Boston piano salesman, by Associate Judge Gerald F. Cobleith while his father and law partner, Marshall D. Cobleith, was appearing before the State Pardons Committee at Concord was the first time limit he extended created such a furor here today, it prompted a statement from Judge Cobleith.

"I waived the time limit," he said, "because Miss Clark gave me very urgent reasons why she should be married at once."

The couple were married by City Clerk Arthur L. Cyr at the City Hall. Witnesses were a stenographer and Attorney Thomas J. Leonard, former city solicitor, who had been consulted by the couple.

WIFE OF L. F. SWIFT IS DEAD IN CHICAGO

Chicago, April 5.—Mrs. Louis F. Swift, wife of the president of Swift and Company, died suddenly in her home in Lake Shore Drive early today.

Death was caused by heart disease.

Mrs. Swift had not been seriously ill. She had been motoring yesterday. She had spent the Winter in California and had returned to Chicago two weeks ago. Mr. Swift was not at the bedside. He returned to Chicago from Honolulu at 9 o'clock this morning to find his wife dead. She had succumbed at 2:30 a. m. All the children were at the bedside when the end came. They are Alden B. Swift, Louis F. Swift, Jr., William Swift and Mrs. Ida Mary Minotto. Mrs. Swift was sixty-two years old.

Fortunate name for yesterday was Eve Ray Brady and it means "Life-giving, "Bright" and "Dweller of the Plains"—What is your name? Maybe it's fortunate, too—Send it in and find out—A daily feature in the Boston Daily Advertiser—Advt.

PIERCE ADMITS RECEIVING FLOWERS

gation that centred about the disposition of their estates.

"Mr. Ulmer sent flowers to my house, although I had no reason to believe they were worth the $1,000 charged in the petition," said Justice Pierce's answer.

"I repeatedly told him I did not want them and wished he would stop sending them. Ulmer, however, said they cost very little, and that many were surplus or short-stemmed flowers that were unsalable and would have to be thrown away if they could not be given away.

"In regard to the firewood, the justice declared that he had bought two cords from Ulmer on one occasion.

"I proved to be of very poor quality," he said, "and was old and infested with ants, much to the annoyance of my neighbors and myself. I expected to pay for it, but Ulmer never sent me the bill."

The vegetables in question, Pierce said, were sent to his cook by Ulmer. He declared that he never knew of this until it was too late.

The justice denied trying, either publicly or privately, to induce claimants of the estate to give up their rights. He took no part in the litigation of the composites, he said, and had nothing whatever to do with the discharge of Attorney William J. Corbett, counsel for one of the claimants.

ROXBURY MAN CHARGED WITH LARCENY OF AUTO

Thomas L. Carney of Winthrop street, Roxbury, arrested in Quincy, appeared in Roxbury district court today charged with the larceny of an automobile. Quincy police saw an automobile operated by Carney standing without lights on Adams street. Carney told the officer he had borrowed the car from a friend in Roxbury. The Quincy police communicated with the Roxbury police, who investigated and found the automobile had been stolen from a private garage in Roxbury.

DEMOCRATS ELECT KANSAS CITY MAYOR

Kansas City, Mo., April 5.—Complete unofficial returns today on the city election yesterday gave Frank Cromwell, Democrat, 63,302 votes for mayor against 56,688 cast for Matthew A. Foster, Republican. Every other candidate for city office on the Democratic ticket was elected. The Democrats elected mayors in Macon, Butler, Fulton, Carthage, Sedalia and Jefferson City.

'LEAK' CHARGED IN POLICE TESTS

It was learned this afternoon that the Civil Service Commission had received information that advance information regarding the tests was forthcoming, and that a score of the expectant candidates for promotion are alleged to have been approached with offers of advanced and detailed information to be had for money.

It was through the sturdy stand taken by one of the candidates, a patrolman of long standing, that the matter came to the attention of the police officials. It was said at headquarters. This man, when offered a copy of the questions, refused, saying that he was confident he could pass, but that if he failed he was content to remain a patrolman in the department.

So far as could be learned today it has not been possible for the police department and the Civil Service Commission to establish the exact connection between the "leak" in the commission's office and the "go-between" on the police force.

MAY REQUIRE NEW TESTS.

If it can be proved that there was a leak and that advance information of the examinations was in the hands of some of the candidates for promotion, it was stated today that the entire examination would be thrown out, the papers burned and the candidates subjected to another examination at once.

Carnes today declined to make any comment upon his resignation or to give any reason for the step.

The sergeant has been on the force ten years, and has been a sergeant for five. He served for a number of years as patrolman in the City Hall avenue station, and won a high reputation for himself on his work.

In 1917 he was transferred to headquarters and there assigned to running down auto thieves.

In this last work he has made a success and won a wide reputation. He has made arrests of automobile thieves from coast to coast. Carnes is married and has a family.

5 SCHOOLS TO TRAIN BUILDING WORKERS

Springfield, April 5.—Announcement was made today in the annual convention of the New England Federation of Sheet Metal Contractors that trade schools for the training of apprentices in branches of the building industry will be established in five Massachusetts cities — Fall River, Lawrence, Worcester, Haverhill and Holyoke, by the Associated Contractors of Massachusetts.

4 MORE CASES FOR BANKRUPTCY COURT

Francis B. Driscoll, with business addresses at No. 31 and 123 State street, was petitioned into bankruptcy today in Federal Court. Creditors' petitions were also filed against Evangeline Weed, Boston, and Louis Attman of Brockton. The L. G. Waist Company, Washington street, Boston, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, the company's liabilities being $6,333.43 and assets $2,115.

SAYS PELLETIER ARGUED ALLEN INDICTMENT

Told Grand Jury It Was "Clear Case of Larceny," Foreman Testifies

Details of the secret proceedings in the Suffolk County Grand Jury room just prior to the voting of an indictment charging Attorney-General J. Weston Allen with the larceny of $105.40 from Mrs. Nellie T. Beck, a client, were barred at the hearing before Judge D. Fessenden in the Superior Court today on Allen's plea in abatement.

Jeremiah A. Desmond, foreman of the Grand Jury that indicted Allen, was the first witness called by Attorney William Flaherty, of Allen's counsel.

Desmond testified that the first vote of the jurors had been for a "true bill," and that it was not until he had personally requested that former Assistant Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, who was present at the time and who had prosecuted the case for the jury, leave the room that Pelletier and former Assistant District Attorney Edward F. Sheehan left the jury to deliberate and vote on the case.

TOLD JURORS TO VOTE.

Under direct examination by Flaherty, Desmond testified he had heard Pelletier say after presenting the case: "This is a clear case of larceny if ever I saw one."

"He also said," added the witness, "that it was not a petty case, and asked, 'How many of you gentlemen of the Grand Jury have $105 in the bank?'"

Flaherty asked the witness if Pelletier had said anything about talking a vote on the matter.

"Yes," replied Desmond. "He told me to take a vote on it."

Q.—What was the result? A.—No bill. I entered the vote 'no bill' on my book. It was the result of my own count of hands and that of the clerk of the Grand Jury.

TALKED TO ONE JUROR.

Desmond said the clerk had refused to sit after the vote on his book, saying that he had not been sure of his result.

"We took another vote," Desmond said.

"Again the result was 'no bill.'"

Desmond said he then walked over to the water tank in the jury room and that Sheehan went up to him and touched his arm and told him that one of the jurors wanted to have the vote reconsidered.

Attorney Flaherty:

Q.—Under the rule for reconsideration was put did you observe Pelletier and what he was saying or doing? A.—I did not hear him say anything. He was talking to a juror in the front row. I joined them and asked if the juror wished you had better leave the room." He did not. I left the room for the purpose of talking a moment with the man who had moved for a reconsideration of the vote. The juror was called.

Cross-examined by Assistant District Attorney Daniel M. Lyons, Desmond said that the juror who asked for a reconsideration was the clerk of the Grand Jury, and that he pointed him out to Pelletier.

Desmond, in reply to questions, said that he had been employed as a clerk in the office of the Good Government Association.

CONTRADICTS FOREMAN.

Cross-examination was by Frederick J. Morse of No. 15 Moreland street, Roxbury, another member of the Grand Jury who had been present at the time the indictment was presented. His testimony contradicted that of Desmond in some respects.

Morse could not remember if Pelletier had asked for a vote or whether Pelletier said anything prior to taking of the vote. He also declared there did not seem to be counting of hands on the first vote, and he assumed that the vote had been taken who moved for a reconsideration of the "no bill" vote. Also he was positive that neither Pelletier nor Sheehan had been requested to leave the room, but acted at his (the witness') own suggestion.

"I made that suggestion openly," Morse testified, "and they acted up on it."

Prior to the opening of the hearing it was permitted that should Judge Fessenden sustain the plea in abatement it would be equivalent to quashing the indictment against the Attorney-General.

THREE JURORS CALLED.

Benjamin F. Allonger, another member of the Grand Jury, testified that after the first vote for a no bill had been taken he heard the clerk say, "Wait I haven't counted all of the hands yet." He said when he looked around he saw that some of the hands were just coming down, and that someone then suggested that the vote be taken over again. He said he remembered only one vote for a no bill.

Ernest H. Wilson, a neighbor of Grantley Way, Dorchester, another juror, testified that Fred Moore, a grand juryman, arose in the midst of the discussion and suggested that the indictment be quashed. Judge Jacobs attempted to steal the nickels from the instrument had accidental started it.

HANGS HIMSELF IN HOTEL ARGONNE

Charlestown Property Owner Ends Life With Rope of Bedclothing

Charles Johnson, fifty-five years old, said to be a large property owner in Charlestown, committed suicide in his room in the Hotel Argonne, Bulfinch street, West End, today, by hanging himself to a closet door with an improvised rope made of bed clothing.

His body was found by Miss Dorothy Parsons, a maid, when she was sent to the room upon Johnson's failure to respond to several knocks on his door.

Neither the police nor hotel management could assign any reason for Johnson's act.

He was married, but is said to have been living apart from his wife for some time. The present address of his wife is not known.

Johnson had been a guest at the hotel for several weeks.

He was known as a quiet man who came and went about his business without seeking to make many friends.

Johnson had made his death noose by tearing up a sheet and weaving it into a rope. When found he was hanging with his knees sagging close to the floor. He had fastened the rope to the top of the door.

HUB MAN SLAIN BY CHICAGO GUNMEN

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 5.—With a raid the most important view, police today were seeking the slayers of Joseph engaged in a pistol fight with detectives in the basement Wilham Parlow of Boston, an innocent bystander, in their flight.

Parlow was stepping out of his car in front of the home of his fiancee, when the bandits attempted to take his car to escape from the police.

While today were questioning employes of the clothing store where Parlow was employed in an effort to identify the men.

Miss Long rushed to the street when she heard Parlow cry for help. He died shortly after the shooting.

JAPANESE MAY STRIKE BACK AT CHITA FORCES

Tokio, April 5 (By the Associated Press).—An official dispatch from Vladivostok to the Japanese War Office today stated the commander of the Chita army in Siberia notified the commander of the Japanese garrison at Spassk, about 100 miles north of Vladivostok, on April 2, that the Chita forces intended to occupy a line within the neutral territory and to continue a further advance southward. The Japanese commander ignored the note.

It was reported that the Japanese general staff had issued instructions to the commander of the Japanese army in Siberia to maintain the prestige of the army and to repulse the Chita forces if they continued their challenging attitude.

2 FINED FOR HAVING LIQUOR UNLAWFULLY

Ralph Leite of Dartmouth was fined $200 today by Judge Morris in Federal Court after pleading guilty to possessing liquor unlawfully. The indictment charged Leite with possessing six thirty-gallon stills and twenty gallons of liquor. Max Reisman of Boston paid a fine of $100 today, imposed after he had pleaded guilty to possessing unlawfully 1245 gallons of liquor.

3 STRIKERS IN LAWRENCE COURT

2 Found Guilty of Carrying Weapons and One on Intimidation Charge

Lawrence, April 5.—Arraignment of three strikers, two for carrying concealed weapons, the other for intimidation, and the granting to the One Big Union of a permit for a big picket parade featured the strike of 17,000 mill operatives here today.

Charles Mantereal and Tony Palliski were the two men charged with carrying weapons. Both were found guilty. The former was fined $100 and sentence in the case of the latter continued.

Constant Romanski, accused of trying to intimidate Henry Wilson, eighty-three years old, for forty-two years an employe of the Lower Pacific Mill, was found guilty and placed on probation.

The court stated that any further offenses of this nature during the strike will result in severe action.

"We are gaining ground on all sides and the situation is most satisfactory," declared President Thomas F. McMahon of the United Textile Workers. "We are more than holding our own and new strikers are joining our forces daily."

McMahon Asks Strike Facts Be Made Public

A statement by President Thomas F. McMahon of the United Textile Workers of America, in reply to that made by Edwin Farnham Greene, treasurer of the Pacific Mills at Lawrence, regarding the recent wage cut and consequent strike, was made public here today.

"I am glad to take this opportunity to express the gratification of the textile workers that one of the leading mill men of the country has recognized that the public and the textile workers have a right to know the facts behind the action of the cotton mills announcing further reductions of wages in the industry, which is already the worst paid large industry in the United States, according to wage data of the National Industrial Conference Board covering nineteen industries in addition to textile industries," said Mr. Mahon.

"It seems to me clear that, since Mr. Greene's mills 'welcome the full est publicity' and base their case 'upon justice,' that nothing stands in the way of an early settlement and harmonious relations thereafter, for he has stated the precise position of the organized textile workers—justice and the fullest publicity."

Cox and Fisher Confer On Lawrence Strike

Governor Cox today conferred on the Lawrence strike with Professor Edward Fisher of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration.

Chairman Fisher told the Governor he board has offered its services as an arbitrator of the strike, but that neither the operatives nor the employe have accepted the offer. Fisher said the board is now making an investigation of the cause of the strike and the responsibility for its continuance.

This report will be submitted to the Governor, he said.

4 Workers Beaten on Way to R. I. Mill

Pawtucket, R. I., April 5.—Two strike sympathizers were arrested for their alleged part in an attack on four operatives of the Jenckes Spinning Company, who were set upon as they were going to the mill.

Militia and police reached the workers after they had been badly beaten. Several workers have been attacked on their way to and from work, recently.

When arraigned in district court the men pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and were each sentenced to thirty days in jail, without the option of a fine. They gave their names as Antonio Gonzalvez and Charles Monterio.

20 CHORUS GIRLS IN NIGHTIES FLEE FIRE

Niles, O., April 5.—Clad in their night attire, forty guests, including twenty chorus girls, fled through windows from the Allison Hotel here today when flames started in the basement.

MORRILL TELLS OF RAID ON FLAT, FINDING WIFE

were encountered by Chase in his shirtsleeves."

Mrs. Morrill was in bed, the husband continued, and the covers pulled over her face. Detective Lyons asked Chase who he was, and the correspondent replied "A friend," later admitting his identity. When the detective asked him what he was doing, said Morrill, Mrs. Morrill raised up to bed and asked to be allowed to explain.

She declared, said the husband, she and Chase had been at the Hotel Somerset. They returned to her apartment when she fell ill, she is said to have continued, and she went to bed while Chase began heating some water for her.

"Did it take three-quarters of an hour to heat a pan of water?" Morrill interjected.

"I haven't any maid, and he was heating the water for me," Mrs. Morrill is said to have replied.

OVERHEARD ON PHONE.

Some time prior to the discovery of his wife in the apartment with Chase, Morrill testified, he had overheard her talking over the telephone to someone whom she addressed as "darling," and whom she informed that she had "got in all right," after "having a wonderful time."

The description of the discovery of his wife's alleged perfidious acts, he completed Morrill's direct testimony. Defense Counsel Sherman Whipple began a scathing cross-examination. He secured an admission that Morrill began taking notes about his wife's conduct as far back as 1917, and asked him to bring these notes to court tomorrow.

Morrill also admitted to Whipple that his wife had suffered extensively from nervous trouble some eight years ago, and that her physician had warned him to be very considerate and kind in his treatment of her.

He declared he was in an adjoining room and that his wife was in her bedroom, talking through an extension telephone. He gave her words as follows:

'HAD WONDERFUL TIME.'

"I had a wonderful time—I got in all right—He was in the bathroom—We'll have plenty of time to rest in the auto tonight—Be sure to write—Goodbye, darling."

AFFECTION COOLED.

This, said Morrill, was in 1918. Later on, he added, he again heard a telephone reference to "getting in all right." He said that on this occasion he heard his wife tell someone:

"Get your breakfast and we'll meet later at Park street. I got in all right."

During his absence, he said, Douglas S. Carter, who is named as one of the co-respondents, had stayed at the Morrill residence.

"I found a change in her attitude towards me," he said. "She showed no pleasure in my return. She resented any acts of affection on my part."

This was on July 15, 1918, he testified.

ACCUSES CARTER.

On July 23 of that year, Morrill continued, his wife asked him for the loan of his automobile so that she might make a number of calls in relation to an army and navy ball, which was to be given by Brookline society people. He consented, only to discover later that she and Carter had driven to Providence together, where they spent the day.

Shortly after this, he said, he asked the maid to tell Carter, who was now a permanent guest in their home because of Mrs. Morrill's wishes, to call him at his downtown office. Carter did so, and later came down to see him.

"I asked Carter if he didn't think he had been too familiar with Mrs. Morrill and if he wasn't at our apartment more than he should be," said the husband. "He said, 'Yes.' I told him I thought he was breaking up my home. He denied it, and said he had always acted the part of a gentleman."

Carter promised, as a result of this conversation, to see less of Mrs. Morrill, Morrill testified.

THREE MEN GUESTS.

Nevertheless, he added, he came home at 4:30 p. m. a few nights later to find a dinner party of considerable proportions in his apartment, at which his wife and Carter were apparently acting as host and hostess.

THREE MEN GUESTS.

When the party broke up, he said, Mrs. Morrill went out, to return at 1 a. m. with three men, all of whom spent the night in the Morrill apartment.

When Mrs. Morrill left home to spend her vacation at her mother's place in Maine that Summer, Morrill said, her only goodbye was a short note she left on his dresser. He produced it in court, reading it as follows:

"My Dear Will: Will you please send me my first August check. Very sincerely yours, Florence R. Morrill."

The husband and wife are fighting for the custody of their two children, Russell, fourteen years old, and Margaret, twelve years old, who are attending the court sessions with their mother.

VOLHARD SUES TO HAVE MARRIAGE ANNULLED

Declaring that he was but eighteen years years old when he was married in Boston to Merle Hancroft and that marriage was falsely obtained, Walter W. Volhard, Cincinnati millionaire, has brought action in the courts at Cincinnati for annulment. The romance of Volhard and the beautiful actress, six years his senior, started in Cincinnati when she appeared at the Grand Opera House. He then followed her to Boston, where ardent court was paid by the young millionaire. On August 13 the pair were married in Boston.

CUSTOMS MEN IN LINE FOR AXE'S SWING

By International News Service.

Washington, April 5.—The administration's shakeup of government departments—already severe enough to bring on a sharp partisan conflict in Congress—has only scratched the surface of what the administration intends to do to the huge Washington machine, Republican leaders said today.

Beginning quietly some weeks ago, the Republican scythe moved slowly into the Treasury Department, took a sudden spurt last week in the specific ousting of thirty chiefs of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and today is swinging through the Internal Revenue Bureau, the customs service, and is soon due in the prohibition unit. All of them come under the Treasury Department.

While the capital remains awhisper, with rumors that the engraving bureau holocaust reveals something more sinister than merely inefficiency, administration leaders, headed by President Harding, insist it is nothing more than a shakeup in the interests of efficiency and for the good of the service.

The "efficiency engineer" in charge of the swinging scythe is Elmer Dover, some time employe of the Republican National Committee, more recently bearer of personal messages between President Harding and President Obregon of Mexico and lately appointed an assistant Secretary of the Treasury. Dover makes no bones about his mission.

"We are going to Hardingize the government if you like," he informed newspapermen at the White House. "Conditions in some of the departments are appalling, and we are going to clean house."

It is the key positions in the government service on which administration axes will fall, however. It became known today. These are semi-executive positions of more or less responsibility and average between $3,000 and $5,000 a year in salary.

The Republicans charge that most of these positions are held by Democratic appointees, and that they really should not be classed as civil service positions at all, and that they are administered with "wartime laxity."

Already nearly 500 men have been discharged or shifted about in the customs service, 300 in the Internal Revenue Bureau and the scythe has hardly begun to swing, according to the Republicans.

ENGLAND DUNS ALLIES SO SHE CAN PAY U. S.

Sends Note Calling Upon Other Nations to Settle Interest on War Debts

London, April 5 (By the Associated Press).—The British government has addressed a note to the allies, declaring that, owing to the fact that Great Britain has to pay the interest on her debt to the United States, she reserves to herself the right to call upon the allies in turn to pay the interest on their war debts to Great Britain.

In this connection it is pointed out that Great Britain is now fully prepared to pay the interest due the United States.

Paris, April 5.—The French reply to the British note concerning payment of interest on war loans by England is likely to be that the question be bound up with that of the inter-allied debts, which must be dealt with as a whole, says the Echo de Paris, quoting a well informed source.

Piecemeal payment would only hamper the settlement, the reply will say.

The British communication notified France that the three years' convention expiring at an early date would not be renewed.

Washington, April 5 (By the Associated Press).—Beyond press reports of Great Britain's preparation to begin the payment of interest upon her five billion dollar war debt to this country, the treasury is as yet without information on the subject.

Great Britain, officials said today, has been reported as laying aside 25,000,000 pounds in her budget for this year to meet interest payments to this country. In October the first semi-annual interest payment will fall due after the expiration of the three-year period during which by mutual understanding, interest on the debt was deferred.

On April 15 the deferred interest due from Great Britain, officials said, will amount to approximately $610,000,000, but this sum, it has been understood, would be the subject of funding negotiations along with the principal of the debt when the new debt commission begins working out a general liquidation scheme.

COURT TO PROBE MARRIAGE OF MOROSCO

Wedded to Los Angeles Actress Three Days After Divorce from First Wife

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, April 5.—Investigation of the residence of Oliver Morosco, theatrical producer, who was married at Santa Ana, Cal., Saturday, to Miss Selma Paley, Los Angeles actress, but three days after he was granted a decree of divorce here from his first wife, was ordered today by Circuit Judge Harry J. Bingeman of Detroit.

Edward Pokorney, friend of the court, was instructed to make the investigation in an effort to learn whether collusion existed.

Morosco filed divorce proceedings against his first wife, Anna T. Mitchell, several months ago, using his family name, Oliver Mitchell, and giving his residence as Bloomfield Hills, a Detroit suburban district.

In his bill of complaint he charged his wife with "nagging" him, casting reflections on his business ability and "trying to bend him to her will." The wife filed a cross bill for divorce, alleging cruelty and infidelity, and naming Miss Paley as co-respondent.

Morosco married his first wife in San Francisco, December 15, 1890. He has a son, Walter, twenty-three years old.

It is understood that Morosco has settled $200,000 upon his first wife in lieu of alimony.

forty millions a year to keep the American flag flying at sea. If forty millions a year, less than a million for each State in the union, will enable the United States to keep its place in world shipping, and especially to be prepared with the commercial "auxiliary" navy in case of war, the price would be cheap.

Some will say that if other nations can make commercial navies self-supporting, this nation should do the same. Possibly, but if our little boy cannot walk it is worth while to help him at first that he may learn later. The main thing is that the United States needs shipping, and apparently can't get it unless the people of the United States pay a subsidy to have it.

There is one powerful man in world politics. He does not let other nations or any man at home or abroad dictate policies for him. Lloyd George is the man. Lucky for England that she has him. And a fortunate thing, for the world in general, that he remains the defiant head of the most powerful nation on earth. Beyond question he is working wisely and sanely in the general interest.

This could be the most powerful nation and would be if it had one or two men like Lloyd George. But the United States is a follower, not a leader, in the world's affairs.

Department of Justice Refuses to Probe Shifters Society

Washington, April 5.—There will be no Department of Justice investigation of the Shifters.

Attorney General Daugherty admitted that he had never heard of the organization, but had wondered why a number of employes of his department had been wearing the paper clip badges.

"There are too many investigations already and the next thing we may have to do is to investigate the investigators," he declared.

SEENA OWEN WINS ALIMONY OF $100 A WEEK

Los Angeles, April 5. — George Walsh, film star, who receives a salary of $500 a week, must pay $100 weekly alimony to Seena Owen Walsh, film beauty. The alimony is for the support of the actor's wife and child.

Judge Summerfield made the alimony order at the conclusion of a hotly contested proceedings in which Walsh sought to avoid paying his wife anything. She maintained that the property settlement was void as being against public policy in that it was the result of a "divorce frameup." Walsh denied the frameup charge.

The court held that no agreement made between husband and wife could be binding where the welfare of the children is concerned. The wife is suing for divorce naming Estelle Taylor, film actress, as the other woman. Walsh has filed an answer and cross complaint charging his wife with cruelty and desertion.

LIQUOR GUARD OF FIFTY FOR N. Y. BORDER

Aeroplanes, Autos and Launches to Be Used In Enforcement Program

By International News Service.

New York, April 5.—Bootlegging along the New York-Canadian border is regarded by federal prohibition officers as one of the gravest problems confronting the dry enforcement officials, and immediate steps are to be taken to deal with it.

Ralph A. Day, State director, has returned from Buffalo where he has been investigating, and after a conference with E. O. Yellowley, chief of the staff of general prohibition agents, here from Washington, declared at least fifty men will be sent to the border soon.

To aid them in their work the prohibition department will put into commission at once automobiles and a fleet of motor launches. Later, it is said, an airplane squadron may be added.

EX-DRY CHIEF WOULD DEBATE WITH HARRIS

Harold Wilson Challenges U. S. Attorney Over Quincy House Raid

Harold D. Wilson, former Supervising Prohibition Agent, today challenged United States Attorney Robert O. Harris to debate the Quincy House liquor raid, when Governor Channing Cox was a guest at a banquet, and Wilson's enforcement methods.

The challenge is contained in a letter addressed to Attorney Harris, in which Wilson says, among other things, that reports of statements credited by the papers to Harris during a Brockton address had been brought to Wilson's attention.

"According to those reports," the letter says, "you accused me of being a discourager of law enforcement, a trouble-maker and an incited of lawlessness."

The letter says other published statements of Harris "lead me to believe you did not favor the Quincy House raid and my theory of enforcing the prohibitory laws from the top down, rather than from the bottom up.

"I would, therefore, suggest that you come into the open like a man and discuss in my presence whatever objections you may have had to my methods as prohibition enforcement chief.

"You prejudice the Quincy House raid in the papers before asking me for my evidence and now you are trying to build up a smoke screen to cover the lukewarmness of your office in prosecuting this case.

"If you can back up the statements credited to you, you should be man enough to come out into the open and do so. I hereby challenge you to a debate on the merits of the Quincy House raid and my enforcement methods in general, in any auditorium in Boston, the entire expense of the debate to be borne by myself and my friends. Fair play and red-blooded Americanism demand an apology or a standup fight."

Wilson adds that the Rev. Frank Kingdon of Boston has offered the use of the People's Temple at any time for the debate.

"I received Mr. Wilson's characteristic letter today," said Harris. He refused further comment.

BALFOUR BALKS AT ACCEPTING EARLDOM

London, April 5.—The British government is having a difficult time forcing honors upon A. J. Balfour, former Premier and head of the British delegation at the Washington conference. Although he recently consented to accept an earldom, it was learned today that he is now balking, and that Premier Lloyd George is using friendly pressure to urge him not to withdraw acceptance.

TEST TEMPERATURES AT 15 MILES IN AIR

San Antonio, Tex., April 5.—A series of interesting meteorological experiments were to begin at Kelly Field today. Small hydrogen filled balloons will be sent up fifteen miles in pairs. They will carry instruments for recording pressure, temperature and other temperature conditions at such altitudes. At a given height one balloon will burst. The second will not be sufficient to carry the weight of the instruments and will drift to the earth.

HEARING FOR BLIND AT STATE HOUSE FRIDAY

A bill providing compensation for the blind unable to work will be given a hearing before the Ways and Means Committee on Friday morning, at 10 o'clock, in Room No. 225, State House. The bill originally requested $50,000 be set aside for this relief. It was later cut to $5,000. Organizations of the blind now seek to have this amount doubled.

It is the aim or the Blind and Cripple Union to abolish street beggary by securing help for the unfortunates from the State.

BIG CARGO IN FROM SOUTH AMERICA

Weather Expert Clayton Is Among Passengers on the Crofton Hall

The storm-delayed Isthmian liner Crofton Hall arrived today from River Plate ports with twenty-six saloon passengers, three stowaways and a big cargo of South American products. The ship ran into northerly gales off Hatteras, which continued for several days.

Among the passengers was Mrs. Clara G. dellischoff, one of sixty school teachers sent to the Argentine by President Cleveland at the request of the Argentine government in 1887, to establish normal schools and who was one of five who remained there. Her first school was at San Juan, at the foot of the Andes, and she rode nearly a thousand miles over trackless prairies to get there.

H. H. Clayton, head of the division of forecasts in the Argentine Weahtre Bureau, returned with his wife and daughter for a visit. Mr. Clayton was for twenty-four years meteorologist at the Blue Hills Observatory and was two years official forecaster at Boston. He has been in Argentine since 1912.

Mrs. Nettie B. Chandler, wife of Philip Chandler, the Argentine representative of the General Electric Company, returned to visit her father, Alderman Frederick Childs of Holyoke, who was on the pier to meet her.

Several business men who came on the ship reported that business conditions are stagnant in all the South American republics, and that not much improvement can take place until credits and money exchange is on a sounder basis all over the world.

TENANTS DISCOVER HOW TO COMBAT RENT RAISE

Chicago, April 5.—The Tenants' League of Chicago has devised a plan for combating rent increases ordered for May 1. MAYOR WINNER ON ONE-PIECE SUIT PLATFORM

Re-elected Because He Believes in Self-Determination for Bathers

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 5.—Mayor Frank Pulver's middle name is Fortune.

Mayor Frank rode into the City Hall on a one-piece bathing suit. Not that he wore one, heavens no, only the ladies look becoming in 'em, but he made his appeal for one-piece suits for the lithsome sea nymphs so successfully he was re-elected on a tide of acclaim.

Mayor Frank is a bachelor. He is a millionaire and one of those "Ain't nature wonderful" executives. Since King Canute, he claims, nobody has ever hung around a beach to watch the waves roll by, save a Florida beach such as St. Petersburg has.

But sprinkle the sands with ladies in one-piece bathing suits, says the Mayor, and that's another convention.

When the above picture was taken Mayor Frank had the police force holding the crowds back to give the camera man elbow room.

St. Petersburg is where the Boston Braves do their Spring training. If Hizoner ever gets tired of mayoring he can join the Braves. For it takes a genuine brave to let himself be set in a cluster of one-piece bathing suit beauty like that.

'Tis well Mr. Pulver's a bach.

HOUSE BURNS; SUES TELEPHONE COMPANY

Manchester, N. H., April 5.—Wilbur E. Barrett brought suit in the New Hampshire Supreme Court against the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, alleging that because the company failed to fix his telephone after a complaint he was unable to call the fire department when fire broke out in his home and as a result his house was destroyed. The court ruled, with one justice dissenting, that the company was not liable.

DROPS DEAD WHILE DRINKING COFFEE

An unidentified man, apparently about fifty-five years old, dropped dead after drinking a cup of coffee at a Cornhill coffee company's store shortly before noon today. Medical Examiner G. S. But—I like 'em wild."

OPPOSE FIELD FOR ARTILLERY PRACTICE

Cape Cod Residents Lodge Protest With Legislative Committee

Charging that firing of big guns would destroy hotels, annoy permanent residents, make life generally unbearable and would impair the rapidly growing value of Cape Cod as a Summer resort, a delegation of Cape citizens today protested against the plan to establish a $50,000 artillery field in the town of Barnstable.

Admiral Francis T. Bowles, retired, president of the Cape Cod Board of Trade, headed the delegation of protesting remonstrants. Chairman Edgar W. Lowell of the Barnstable selectmen, John Bursley of the State Department of Agriculture and former Senator Charles L. Gifford a real estate holder, were among others who today lodged their protest with the legislative Committee on Military Affairs.

General John H. Sherburne asserted that "the artillery of Massachusetts, when the record is written, will be found to have made achievements surpassed by none which entered the world war." General Sherburne said the State should outline to develop its artillery.

The proposed site is ideal, he said, and will offer a splendid opportunity for firing at target at sea.

LOVE IS DEEP DARK MYSTERY OF THE AGE

No Man Can Explain It, Says President of St. Stephen's College

No living man can tell why it is he loves his wife.

But it is certain that he does not love her for any charm or adornment, nor does he love her because of her intellectual ability.

In other words, loves between man and woman is a riddle that cannot be explained.

This was the substance of an address made at the noon service in St. Paul's Cathedral today by the Rev. B. I. Bell, president of St. Stephens's College, Annandale, N. Y.

"No one can ever put in terms of any meaning why he loves anyone," said Dr. Bell. "He just does."

Dr. Bell added that young people are to reason to regulate their moral lives on purely physical lines.

"You are a fool to be moral if you think you haven't any soul," he said. "But you must not live on this physical basis. Don't appeal to Mrs. Grundy. Appeal to God for quid an."

The Aftermath of Influenza

This is No. 1 of a series of advertisements, prepared by a competent physician, explaining how certain diseases which attack the air passages—such as Pneumonia, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Measles or even a long continued Cold—often leave these organs in an inflamed, congested state, thus affording a favorable foothold for invading germs. And how Vicks Vapo-Rub may be of value in this condition.

Your doctor will impress upon you that following recovery from the active stage of influenza, there often remains an inflamed, congested condition of the air passages—throat, larynx, bronchial tubes and lungs.

Frequently the cough hangs on—soreness of the chest persists—you take cold easily and there may be obstinate catarrh. This condition is slow to clear up and if neglected may favor the development of pneumonia, or later on, serious disease of the lungs.

Such cases should continue under the care of their physician — should exercise moderately in the open air — eat plenty of wholesome food—avoid overwork and sudden chills.

Nightly applications of Vicks Vapo-Rub may help nature to complete the process of repair. Because Vicks acts locally by stimulation through the skin to draw out the inflammation, attract the blood away from the congested spots and relieve the cough. In addition, the medicinal ingredients of Vicks are vaporized by the body heat. These vapors are breathed in all night long, thus bringing the medication to bear directly upon the inflamed areas.

Vicks should be rubbed in over the throat and chest until the skin is red—then spread on thickly and cover with hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. If the cough is annoying, swallow a small bit of Vicks the size of a pea.

Samples will be sent free to new users on request to the Vick Chemical Company, Greensboro, N. C.

EDISON EXPERT ADMITS RATE BASIS UNFAIR

Says 18,000 Pay What They Will Stand and 117,000 What Is Needed

That the Edison Electric Illuminating Company charges 18,000 of its customers all it thinks the customers will stand and then collects from the remaining 117,000 customers whatever it thinks is necessary to pay the balance of the cost of operation and dividends to its stockholders was today admitted to the State Department of Public Utilities by Richard S. Hale, superintendent of research.

Mr. Hale was the fourth of the Edison's "experts" called to the witness stand by the city of Boston and the Boston American in an attempt to find out if the Edison has any scientific or just method of charging its rates, which have been attacked as the highest and most complicated in any big city in the country.

Mr. Hale admitted that so far as he knows the Edison has no system by which the consumer is charged on the basis of what it costs the Edison to manufacture the electricity and to deliver it to his home or place of business.

FEW CHANGES MADE.

"Have you made any suggestions to simplify the Edison's rates?" said former Corporation Counsel Arthur D. Hill.

"Yes," said Mr. Hale.

"What steps were taken to simplify them?"

"None."

"Have any changes been made?"

"Very few, if any, since 1908."

Mr. Hill asked Mr. Hale to explain what methods could be employed to figure out the cost of distributing electricity to each customer. Mr. Hale replied that the cost of the meter was one of the items that could be included. He was asked how much a meter cost.

"We used to be able to get them as low as $5 apiece," he said. "I think they have gone up to $10 or $15. I don't know any closer than that."

"Have you figured out the cost of service to your A rate customers?" said Mr. Hill.

"No," said Mr. Hale. "We try to make the A rate low by getting as much as we can out of the others."

"You mean," said Mr. Hill, "that you charge some customers as much as you think they will pay and then fall back upon the other customers to bring in as much money as you need?"

"That's about it," said Mr. Hale.

THREW AWAY FIGURES.

The A rate customers pay the Edison ten cents per kilowatt hour, one of the highest prices in America. All the users of electricity, for power, cooking, heating and the like, pay a score of different rates.

It is estimated that the 18,000 customers outside the A rate pay the company about $6,500,000 a year. The A rate customers pay a similar sum.

Mr. Hale said the Edison, if it abolished street lighting, would save money and would cut the cost to the other consumers.

Mr. Hill demanded to know his basis for that statement. "General talk among officers of the company," he said.

"Have you made any attempt to find out the cost of service to each customer?" said Mr. Hill.

"Yes," said Mr. Hale, "some years ago."

"Have you got the results of that investigation?"

"I don't think so."

"What became of them?"

"I threw them away," said Mr. Hale.

Paris, France.

A TROTTUER of navy blue wool rep chooses the paletot sildouette for its jacket. This fastens at throat with one button, is corded about an inch from the front edges and falls away over a blouse of white wool rep embroidered in blue and tied about with a blue silk cord and tassel. Lastly, it is given engaging little pleated pockets that extend a bit below the bottom of the coat. The skirt is circular and rather full.

THE alternative of the paletot jacket is the one bloused at a low waistline, and the distinction of both silhouettes makes choice difficult. A standing collar trimmed with black leather—a new note of which Paris is especially fond, deep lapels and leather pockets give this model very much of an air!

ASK $7,500,000 FOR MUSCLE SHOALS

Senate Committee Favors Amendment to Army Bill to Resume Work on Dam

Washington, April 5.—Resumption of work on the gigantic Wilson Dam at Muscle Shoals, Ala., under charge of army engineers, was recommended today by the Senate Agriculture Committee, which voted unanimously to press an amendment to the army supply bill providing an appropriation of $7,500,000 to finance work on the dam for one year beginning next July 1.

Committee members agreed with Chairman Norris that the action was taken in order to expedite completion of the project and was without prejudice to the offers for operation, completion, purchase or lease of the Muscle Shoals project received by the government from Henry Ford, the Atlanta Power Company and Frederick E. Engstrum.

Some anxiety was exhibited by committeemen that the amendment might be held subject to a point of order in the Senate, but Chairman Norris expressed the opinion that a point of order could not be upheld.

BOOKER WASHINGTON STATUE IS UNVEILED

Tuskegee, Ala., April 5.—Transportation methods ranging from special cars to muleback were utilized to bring to Tuskegee today a steady stream of white people and negroes to the unveiling of a statue of Booker T. Washington, founder of Tuskegee Institute. Special cars brought parties from New York, Washington, Chicago, Atlanta and New Orleans, and the countryside rallied in automobiles, on horseback, mulebback, afoot and in every conceivable kind of vehicle.

$45,681,000 ON CONTRACTS PAID ILLEGALLY

Audit of Wartime Vouchers Bares Army Overdrafts, Senators Are Told

Washington, April 5.—An audit of wartime contracts has shown that the government overpaid army contractors $45,681,000, it was revealed today by Brigadier-General H. M. Lord, chief of army finance, before the Senate Army Appropriations Committee.

Of the amount owed the government, Lord said, $26,000,000 was now in process of collection, while $1,800,000 had been paid back on older claims.

STONE COUNSEL ATTACKS 'GANG' IN CINCINNATI

Declares Kinkead's Friends Trying to Swear His Client's Life Away

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 5.— Summing up today at the trial of Miss Olivia M. P. Stone, nurse charged with murdering Ellis G. Kinkead in Brooklyn last August, Edward J. Reilly, her counsel, charged that "the gang that rules Cincinnati," the city that Kinkead once served as corporation counsel, was trying to swear away the life of his client.

In dramatic fashion, Reilly challenged Kinkead's widow, who sat weeping in the witness box, to call him to prove his charges that she had been a woman of the underworld and dared anyone to take the stand and testify that his client, "this good Southern girl," lied.

Wan and haggard after a sleepless night in jail, Miss Stone entered court weeping.

"I put my trust in God, the jury and Judge Aspinall," she said.

Mrs. Kinkead also showed the effects of the strain. When Reilly brought her name into his address she so lost her composure that for a moment she had to leave the courtroom. She soon returned, however, and sat crying as he finished his address.

"The State must prove Miss Stone sane," Reilly said. "It must prove her clear in mind and establish that she knew what she was doing when she shot Kinkead.

"You have a right to assume that there is someone behind the scenes, and from the names mentioned here you have a right to assume who it is that is trying to swear away the life of a good Southern girl.

"The same gang that rules Cincinnati and which drove Olivia Stone out has come down here and is hounding her now. They came to damn a woman's reputation.

"I'll stop this speech here now if Marie Gormley will go on this stand and defy me to prove what I said she was.

GUARD OF 12,000 BARRELS OF WHISKEY MURDERED

Baltimore, April 5.—Harry Stoucker, fifty-two years old, a guard at the Gwynnbrook Distillery, near Pikesville, Baltimore County, in which there is stored 12,000 barrels of whiskey, was shot and almost instantly killed at the plant early today by a man dressed partly in the uniform of an aviator and posing as an internal revenue officer. The murderer is believed by the police to have been the advance guard of a band of liquor thieves. Stoucher fell he fired his own revolver at the assailant and it is believed that the shot took effect.

SEIZE JOURNALS WITH ROYALIST BULLETIN

Budapest, April 5.—By the Associated Press.—The State Prosecutor has ordered seizure of all news papers which published the legitimists' proclamation on Monday proclaiming Francis Joseph Otto, eldest son of the late former Emperor Charles, as King of Hungary. The proclamation read: "With the death of Charles, Otto II is King of Hungary, although temporarily prevented from coronation." It was signed by 19 aristocrats, headed by Count Albert Apponyi.

EARTH SHOCKS ALARM PEASANTS IN SERBIA

Belgrade, April 5. (By the Associated Press.) — Intermittent earth shocks, which began on March 23, are continuing in the northern section of Serbia, but with decreasing intensity. No casualties have been reported, but the highly superstitious peasant population is greatly alarmed. There was widespread damage in the Lazarevatz district because of the characteristic flimsiness of the houses. A number of hot springs have started up in the fissures caused by the earth shocks.

FACE IMMENSE JOB SCRAPPING BATTLESHIPS

Country Has No Plants Large Enough to Handle Task on Such Short Notice

By International News Service.

Washington, April 5.—Details of the plans for scrapping the battleships condemned by the Washington conference, are nearing completion by a special board of naval officers, it was learned at the Navy Department today. The task undertaken by these officers is the largest of its kind in the country's history.

In its proportions it far outranges the experience of American industry, according to experts. Actually there are today no plants in the country equipped for such a job on short notice.

There are ship-scrapping organizations now in operation, but only a very small number do this work on anything but a small basis.

It is estimated that ships having a total of 800,000 tons displacement must be reduced to so much metallic junk. In any case the job will call forth a considerable organization of technical skill and skilled labor. Congress may be called on eventually to authorize the creation of the machine which may have to be set up.

Less elaborate schemes also are part of the board's consideration and may be adopted.

INDIA TRAIN WRECK IS LAID TO STRIKERS

Bombay, April 5.—Wrecking of the mail train from Calcutta to the Punjab Monday night, when the engine and six coaches toppled over a 50-foot embankment near Madhura, was caused by an obstruction placed on the track by strikers, it is declared in a report made after an investigation. Thus far ten passengers have been reported killed and 200 injured, some of them critically.

TO KEEP ANNIVERSARY OF GETTYSBURG BATTLE

Gettysburg, Pa., April 5.—Civil War veterans have started a movement for the celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg with another great reunion here in July, 1923. The local Grand Army Post, sponsor for the movement, has been assured of co-operation by the Chamber of Commerce and business men's organizations.

MEDBURY

Says Correspondence School Scholars Can Get Nearer the Classroom by Moving Their Desk Down to the Post Office

Correspondence schools are getting more popular every day. We can now attend classes by letter and play hookey between them.

You're the only one in the class, and your department is bound to be excellent unless you talk to yourself.

If you live in San Francisco you can't help getting along with the teacher, especially if she's in Chicago.

Of course, if you cheat in your studies you're supposed to let the teacher know by registered letter and she promptly reprimands you by special delivery.

You might go to the penitentiary if you copy your lessons from your schoolmate. It's against the law to open other people's mail.

It's more honorable not to copy your answers, and, besides, the other fellow might be wrong.

If you're sick or absent from your studies you're supposed to send the school an excuse from the postman.

Never send your answers in on a postal card. The letter carrier could read them for nothing, and then the school would lose a scholar.

Of course you have no principal. Your conscience is supposed to guide you. If you haven't any conscience maybe you can borrow one from the neighbors.

Most scholars like to be as near the school as possible. The best way to do is to move your desk down to the postoffice.

A lot of scholars have so much to learn that they have to carry on their studies by parcel post.

The magazines say that if you study at home you can soon be earning a hundred or two hundred dollars a week. The only trouble is, the employers don't seem to read these particular advertisements.

MAYOR INVITES JOFFRE TO VISIT HERE

Wires Hero of Marne, Now on Pacific Coast, to Come to Boston

Mayor Curley today wired Marshal Joffre, hero of the Marne, who is touring the United States with his wife and daughter, to make Boston a port of call.

The French marshal was here in 1917. He is now on the Pacific Coast and is planning to leave New York for France on April 29.

The Mayor is anxious to have Marshal Joffre take part in the centennial anniversary of the incorporation of Boston as a city, beginning April 24.

CITY WILL LOSE $125,000 BY WHITE GIFT

Lyons Argues for Bill to Allow Tax on the Property

The city of Boston will lose about $125,000 in taxes a year on the $5,000,000 estate left to the city by George R. White, according to figures submitted by Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph P. Lyons to the Committee on Municipal Finance today.

Lyons argued for the immediate passage of the bill proposed by Mayor Curley, in co-operation with Governor Cox, to enable the city to impose taxes upon the estate.

He said that under existing law a city is prohibited from taxing its own property. As a result, he said, the taxes will be lost from the lessees of the White real estate, whose terms of lease include an agreement to pay the tax.

He said the bill should be made retroactive to April 1 in order that this year's tax levy might not be lost. He announced that Attorney-General Allen had given his opinion that the bill is constitutional.

ALIENISTS FIND ZIMMERMAN GIRL IS SANE

Hearing on Granting Pardon to Slayer of Cousin Set for Next Wednesday

Miss Jennie G. Zimmerman of Springfield, who shot and killed her cousin, Dr. Henry Zimmerman, in that city, August 7, 1919, and who, as a result of the tragedy, was committed to an insane asylum, is sane, according to a report just made by a special board of alienists.

As a result of this report a new fight for her release on a full pardon has been started by her friends, and Governor Cox has set next Wednesday as the date for a hearing on the matter before the Council.

Miss Zimmerman is now an inmate of the asylum at Northampton. The new fight to obtain her freedom is being headed by Mrs. L. S. Goulson of this city. She is being assisted in the fight by a number of Jewish societies.

Mrs. Goulson informed the Governor today that if the pardon is granted, these societies and friends of Miss Zimmerman will guarantee that she is properly cared for.

Miss Zimmerman killed the physician because she claimed he had betrayed her. She was found not guilty of the murder following a long and sensational trial on the ground that she had committed the crime while insane.

With her acquittal she was sent to the Northampton institution, where she has since been an inmate. Several attempts to win her release have been made, but none with success.

DOCTORS MADE IT FAMOUS

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Has Been Prescribed by Physicians for Thirty Years

Doctors wanted iron in a form easily absorbed into the blood and it was one of them, Dr. A. Gude, who found the way to give it. It is now sold by druggists everywhere—almost every druggist in the United States has Gude's Pepto-Mangan in both liquid and tablet form. Doctors everywhere advise weak and run-down people to build up with this splendid tonic. It puts color into the cheeks and increases strength and vitality by making the blood rich and red, and that is the only true and sure way to keep well. If you are all tired out and nervous and feel half sick and "cross," take Gude's Pepto-Mangan for a few weeks at meal time and you will feel like a new being. It is a wonderful tonic, and you will be delighted with the results.

WOULDN'T STOP WORK TO SEE PRESIDENT

Thought Son Was Playing When He Said Harding Was in Parlor

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

Washington, April 4.—Ten-year-old Herbert Farmer almost got a spanking from his ma because he told her to hurry out of the kitchen, where she was baking bread, and come into the parlor and see the President of the United States.

"That child is always playing tricks," said Ma Farmer today, "and there I was up to my elbows in dough and two loaves in the oven, and if it wouldn't have spoiled the bread, I'd have given him a good licking, I was that mad."

Ma Farmer confessed she was even madder and felt like giving little Herbert two spankings when she learned he had told the truth—the President was in the parlor.

Mistaken location had taken the President to the Farmers' humble cottage at No. 24 Quincy street, Northeast, Washington. A distant relative of the President living at No. 24 Quincy street, Northwest, was ill and the nation's chief executive knocked a few minutes off his job to call on the patient.

At the Farmer home he was received by little Herbert.

"Hello, son, is your daddy home?" asked the President.

"Yep, he's home," answered Herbert.

"He's upstairs and ma's in the kitchen baking bread."

He ushered the President into the parlor and called to his father.

"Why, you look like the President."

The President laughingly acknowledged his identity.

"Then he said he guessed he had made a mistake and I told him I was right proud to have had him and we sat a few moments and had a chat. Then I sent Herbert for his mother, and she wouldn't come for she thought the kid was fooling. Women never will take a chance," said Herbert's pa.

TILT ON TAKING OF STREET IN SOUTH BOSTON

Dr. Harrington Attacks Councillor Moriarty's Stand on Playground Proposal

A lively tilt between Councillor James T. Moriarty and Dr. Edward T. Harrington, took place during a hearing before the Street Commissioners, at City Hall, on the question of the discontinuance of Second street between M and N streets, South Boston.

Dr. Harington charged that only politicians were in favor of the closing of the street, which is asked for as an improvement to the Christopher J. Lee playground on M street.

Dr. Harrington said he saw present several "politicians" some who are in office at present and others who have held office and would in all probability hold office again.

Moriarty jumped to his feet and said, "I am not a 'pol.' My reputation is as good as any member of the South Boston Citizens' Association or anybody else who is here."

"As I am the boss of convention, it seems, I want to say that the South Boston Citizens' Association does not control me. I say that the vote of the association was not unanimous in opposing the cutting off of the street, because I opposed it."

"I object to the doctor throwing slurs. I feel the doctor's remarks and I believe he ought to retract them. I am not playing politics."

Dr. Harrington replied, "I refuse to retract the statement. They are all politicians having held public office at some time. I think it was a perfectly proper statement to make."

Those who were opposed to the taking of the street, were besides Dr. Harrington, James H. White, Walter F. Keen, and John C. Murphy, all business men of the South Boston district.

Ex-Representative Robert E. Bigelow, and Robert J. Ware, Joseph A. Norton, Vice-president of the Boston Twilight Baseball League and many others favored the project.

The closing of the street would mean that the Park department would have the right to enlarge the present playground, so that they could erect concrete bleachers for the public to witness the games held there.

After a lengthy hearing the board took the case under advisement. Both Harrington and Moriarty are members of the South Boston Citizens' Association.

DR. J. L. BARTON SEES TRIUMPH FOR TURK

Secretary of Foreign Mission Board Regards Conference as Tragedy

Dr. James L. Barton, foreign secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, in a statement today said that the conference over the settlement of Turkish affairs "again the Turk has triumphed over the combined diplomacy and the original lofty insurances of the Allies. He urged American representation at the conference in order that American interests might be safeguarded.

"The conference over the settlement of Turkish affairs looks more like a tragedy than a peace measure," said Dr. Barton's statement. "Assuming that these dispatches are not complete, we have enough to show that again the Turk has triumphed over the combined diplomacy and the original lofty assurances of the allies.

"While the Turk has lost Arabia and Mesopotamia, which for a century have been a liability rather than an asset, and Syria for a generation but wholly dominated by the Sultan, Turkey is coming back into power at Constantinople as a recognized nationalist government, newly established by treaty and with some of her lost European territory restored.

"Adrianople, the ancient capital of the Ottoman Empire, in the hands of the Greeks will be but a bone of contention for the future. It can not mean peace. If the Turk goes back into Europe he will never be content until he has seized control of that sacred city of Islam.

"Reports of the conference fail to show that the agreements arrived at include religious liberty for the people of the country.

"For a century American men and woman and American capital have been going into Turkey, and as a result the American religious, educational and charitable interests there exceed those of any one of the countries represented in the conference More than one hundred million dollars of American money have been expended in the establishment and support of these purely American enterprises.

COLEMAN MAY RUN AGAINST LODGE

Ford Hall Forum Founder Being Urged as Candidate for U. S. Senate

That a movement has been started to prevail upon George W. Coleman to run as an independent candidate for the United States Senate became known today.

Mr. Coleman is an independent Republican, with the accent on the "independent."

He is the organizer of the Ford Hall Forum, the father of the forum system throughout the United States and is well known as a publicist and expounder of liberal thought.

Mr. Coleman has great potential strength among the church organizations. He was last a candidate before the public when he ran for delegate-at-large to the Constitutional Convention and was handily elected, defeating such prominent candidates as President Lowell of Harvard, Moorfield Storey and the late Samuel J. Elder.

If Mr. Coleman should consent to enter the lists, his candidacy will draw heavily from Senator Lodge.

Robert M. Washburn has resigned as president of the Roosevelt Club and as chairman of its executive committee. His statement of resignation indicates that he is out of sympathy with the candidacy of Mr. Lodge, whom he has invariably supported and for whose election he was largely responsible the last time Mr. Lodge was elected by the Legislature.

Washburn, in his statement of resignation, recalled that the Roosevelt Club has indorsed Senator Lodge, and he said the club should have as its leader "one who can enthusiastically and efficiently prosecute this work."

Washburn has of late been making speeches laudatory of Joseph Walker, who has announced his intention of contesting the Republican nomination with Mr. Lodge.

It was announced that the revenue cutter Cahoma, at Vicksburg, has been ordered to make all speed possible to the flooded territory.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Elite Aid Spring Millinery Sale at Simmons Shop

By BETTY ALDEN

THERE are few womenfolk, indeed, who find parting with their money a difficult task when purchasing hats—which is one of the very good reasons for the sale of Spring millinery being held today at the Simmons Salvage Shop, No. 23 Bagdon street. Ever since the shop was started, about a year ago, the numerous sales given there have added quite materially to the Simmons College endowment fund. As everyone knows, the little shop has had a corps of prominent society women working busily for its success.

The sale today, beginning promptly at 10 o'clock, offers a varied and really worth-while display of chapeaux and there will also be a number of attractive afternoon and evening frocks to be had.

Apropos of the Salvage Shop, at a meeting not long ago, Miss Rose L. Dexter of Beacon street was elected chairman of the Salvage Shop committee, when Mrs. Stephen B. Davol was re-elected treasurer.

Last year the shop was conducted with marked success under the capable management of Mrs. James J. Storrow, who was one of the leading spirits of the shop in its early and more trying days. Other members re-elected to the executive committee are Mrs. Edwin Farnham Greene, Miss Dorothy Forbes, Hrs. Guy Murchie, Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall, Mrs. James J. Storrow, Mrs. Moses Williams, Jr., and Miss Mary E. Williams. Additional members elected to the committee include Mrs. Benjamin F. Pitman and Mrs. Alexander Henderson of Chestnut Hill.

Apropos of sales and the like—some unusually attractive articles are being offered at the two-day Bazaar of the Seasons, which opened yesterday at the Army and Navy Club, and continues throughout today.

Mrs. William Sturgis Lothrop is showing the most marvelous collection of imported Chinese necklaces, to be had at astonishingly reasonable prices. These rare pieces, which all come from Peking, are all of different stones, some are of the choicest jade, others of exquisitely carved ivory, another of rare Chinse crystal, another of turquoise matix, others still of ivory tinted, the most delicate shades, while others of red agate and real amethyst are included in the display. Mrs. Lothrop herself brought all the necklaces from California, and she emphasized the fact that they may be purchased at unusually low prices.

Though Mrs. Lothrop's collection of ornaments makes the trip to the Army and Navy Club worth while in itself, there are any number of other features to entice the prospective purchaser.

The lunch room did a rushing business Tuesday, and it is expected to be just as crowded today. There are a corps of attractive young girls on hand to serve the patrons, the group including Miss Nanny Wheelwright, head waitress, and the Misses Elizabeth Cole, Ethel Cummings, Rebecca Hobbs, as well as Mrs. L. Manlius Sargent (Elizabeth Williams), Mrs. Sherman Thorndike and Mrs. Marland Tobbs.

This afternoon Miss Andree Parker is in charge of the tea dansant to be given in the ballroom of the Army and Navy Club at which the Army Band will furnish the music. The ballroom has been attractively decorated with palms and navy flags, quite transformed for the occasion.

Mrs. George W. Wheelwright, Jr., in charge of the September table had a number of well-known folk helping her sell the handkerchiefs and neckwear with which the table was laden. They are Mrs. J. Mott Hallowell, Mrs. DeNormandie, Miss Jeannie Dupee and Miss Katherine Lee.

Others working as "saleslad ies" are Mrs. James Cunningham Gray, who is presiding at the flower stand, Mrs. Robert S. Weeks at the November table, Mrs. Thomas C. Thacher at the August booth, and Mrs. Barrett Wendell at the May table.

The Lest-We-Forget Committee of the Army and Navy Club, which is running the bazaar, is doing its best to prevent us from "forgetting" the boys who served during the war, and the efforts of the committee should not be allowed to be in vain.

MRS. JOHN NICHOLAS BROWN of No. 181 Commonwealth avenue has arrived for a brief stay in New York, where she is stopping at the Hotel Belmont. Mrs. Brown and her son, John Nicholas Brown, a senior at Harvard, were recently in Newport for a few days where they have a large Summer estate.

Mrs. Grafton Minot (Constance Gardner) of Pride's Crossing recently entertained a distinguished dinner company at her home in the capital. Her guests included Justice and Mrs. Oliver Wendell Holmes, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, General John J. Pershing, Mrs. Borden Harriman, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, General C. C. Williams, and Henry May.

Miss Amy Lowell of Brookline, who has been on a lecture tour in the South, is stopping at the Shoreham, in Washington, en route to Boston from Charleston, S. C.

The season at Palm Beach is practically over now. The Breakers closed on Tuesday, the Beach Club on Saturday and the Royal Poinciana some ten days ago. The number of cottagers still there is fast dwindling.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Kinnaird Tod and Mrs. Tod's daughter, Miss Constance Peabody, who have been making a long season of it at Palm Beach, will leave there for New York April 15 and will later sail to spend the Summer in Europe. The Tod's are members of the Summer colony along the North Shore.

Mrs. Francis W. Bird has concluded her long sojourn at Aiken, S. C., and is returning North to "Eadean," the Bird estate in East Walpole. Mrs. Bird is an ardent sports-woman, and during her stay at Aiken she was frequently seen along the riding trails with her two small daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Hyde and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft are among the Bostonians in New York, where they are stopping at the new Ambassador Hotel.

Mrs. J. Randolph Coolidge, Jr., is to give an illustrated talk on "Examples of Recent Architecture in th United States" before the Dedham Historical Society, on Wednesday evening, April 5.

COURT OATH TOO FREQUENTLY IGNORED

Bishop Turner Starts Move to Preserve Sacredness of Sworn Word

Buffalo, April 5.—Holding that the oath administered in the courts too frequently is regarded merely as a form and its sanctity ignored, Bishop William Turner of the Catholic diocese of Buffalo is fostering a campaign by a church organization in defence of the dignity and sacredness of the sworn word.

It is planned to extend the movement to every part of the country.

The official organ of the diocese quotes Bishop Turner as saying that "a prominent criminal lawyer of the West" told him that "90 per cent. of the oaths taken in law courts result in perjury."

WIFE ATTACKS RICH HUBBY AS 'BLUEBEARD'

Married Another 17 Days After Making Her His Bride, She Charges

New York, April 5—Exactly 17 days after he married Ellen Curley McIntyre in Youngstown, Nov. 28, Joseph Donald Grafton, son of a millionaire Pittsburgh furniture manufacturer, married Peggy Davis, 17-year-old dancer in the "Follies" in New York. This became known when both women produced their marriage certificates here, following a dramatic visit by Mrs. Grafton the first to the sanitarium where the second Mrs. Grafton lay critically ill.

The two Mrs. Graftons have not met. Mrs. Grafton the first told her story to Peggy's mother because Peggy was too ill to be informed of the marriage tangle.

Grafton met his Youngstown wife when she was a keeper in his father's Pittsburgh office. They were married by B. J. Rosenstel, a Youngstown justice of the peace.

"Don Grafton is a bluebeard," says the first Mrs. Grafton, who believes he has still another wife living in a New England city.

"Every day he was on his honeymoon with Peggy he wrote me the most loving letters. The third day after I married him I read an advertisement in a weekly publication in which a woman, whose name was given, asked that Joseph Donald Grafton of Pittsburgh, husband of her daughter, be found, as his wife was dangerously ill."

NAMES CHORUS GIRL.

"Donald said it was all a mistake. I believe this woman's daughter may be Polly Lorraine, a chorus girl, who threatened him with a breach of promise suit," she went on.

"He told me he had been friendly with Polly a year, but that they were not married, and she had no hold on him.

"I am praying to God he had another wife before he married me, for I want an annulment, rather than a divorce," she explained.

Even after he got Peggy in the hospital, when he knew her life was in danger, he wrote, telegraphed and telephoned me. He begged me to go to Wilkesbarre with him. But I suspected something was wrong and I refused to go.

"He had the nerve to mail me letters from Troy, where he went on his honeymoon with Peggy. He had me send mail addressed to him to the place where he was living in New York with Peggy and her mother."

HUSBAND IS SOUGHT.

Representatives of both wives today were seeking Grafton, whose whereabouts are unknown.

He was said to have entered secretly the apartment he and "Peggy" occupied here last Thursday and removed all his effects.

Before that he had been writing to Peggy and her mother from points in Pennsylvania, telling of his struggles to obtain sufficient money to pay for Peggy's sanitarium treatment.

Peggy Davis, the second "wife," is the daughter of Mrs. Capitola P. Laird, her off-stage name being Mary Margaret Laird.

TWO WILL MAKE PAUL REVERE'S FAMOUS RIDE

Committee Completes Plans for Unique Celebration of Patriots' Day

A joint meeting of representatives of the committees from seven towns and cities that are co-operating in plans for the observance of Patriots' Day this year, on April 19, was held at Boston City Hall.

The communities represented were Arlington, Brookline, Cambridge, Lexington, Medford, Somerville and Boston.

TWO ON FAMOUS RIDE.

Arrangements were completed for the two central features of the holiday, which will be the annual reproduction of the historic rides of Paul Revere and his companion rider, William Dawes, Jr.

Each rider will be an officer of the State cavalry with a mounted escort of troopers from Boston to Lexington.

"Revere" will go by way of Charlestown, Winter Hill in Somerville, to Medford square, to Arlington Center and then to Lexington Green.

"Dawes" will start from Eliot square in Roxbury and ride through Brookline to Harvard square in Cambridge and then out Massachusetts avenue through Arlington Center to Lexington. At each town and city there will be exercises as the riders arrive and depart.

ACCOMPANIED BY FLYERS.

Plans are being made for an airplane to fly over both routes, circling each of the communities through which the riders pass. Broadcasting by radiophone of bulletins of the departure of each rider and his progress is also being planned by the committee.

Cambridge will have a program, including an open air celebration at night. There will be an evening open air program on Boston Common which will include features relating to Boston's centennial.

Cambridge Drifts 26 Feet Further From England

By Universal Service.

London, April 5.—"Greenwich has apparently drifted as much as half a mile toward the Equator in the last eighteen years." This is a declaration by Professor J. W. Evans, famous astronomer.

"Naples is one-third of a mile south of where it was fifteen years ago," adds Professor Evans, "and between 1872 and 1913, Cambridge, Mass., moved twenty-six feet away from Greenwich, England."

Professor Evans adds that experiments show that the earth bulges under the pull of the sun and moon, in an up and down movement of about eighteen inches.

"The world is like a Japanese lantern," he says. "It tends to telescope if the poles are pressed toward each other stoutly, but resists pressure in other directions."

SEES SEVERAL WOMEN IN CONGRESS

Detroit, April 5.—Several women will sit in the next Congress, in the opinion of Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, vice-chairman of the Republican Club.

The record of Miss Alice Robertson of Oklahoma, Mrs. Upton declared, would aid the candidacies of a number of women who are seeking seats in the coming elections.

Women's political activities are in a transitory state, and they probably will never figure prominently as office-holders, except in minor offices, but their influence will permeate politics as it does the home, Mrs. Upton said.

One of the greatest obstacles in the way of women office-seekers, she said, "is the fact that man trusts woman individually, bu t not collectively."

FAVORS CHURCH MERGER OF PROTESTANTS

Will Mean Gain of Power, Prestige and Influence, Says Dr. Scudder

The union of Protestant churches as a means of gaining more power, prestige and influence was urged by the Rev. Doremus Scudder, executive secretary of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches, in an address before the Council of Federations of Women's Church Societies, in the Church of the New Jerusalem.

The speaker declared that they are now organized on a wrong basis; that the pastors of Protestant churches are today overloaded with work and that is why the federation activities break down in the churches themselves. Pastors are forced out because of one-pastor churches.

Dr. Scudder declared co-operation is being introduced slowly between capital and labor, which in the end will transform the world into a brotherly family and eventually do away with the waste of industrial warfare.

Three-minute speeches by presidents of federations, called in the order of their organization, were given by Mrs. Joshua B. Hale, Providence; Mrs. E. T. Root, Somerville; Mrs. Arthur Stanley, Hyde Park; Mrs. A. M. Wilkins, Lynn; Mrs. George A. Brown, Everett; Mrs. J. S. Whitehill, Belmont; Mrs. George L. Parker, Newton Centre, and Mrs. Maynard, Haverhill.

Officers elected were: President, Mrs. E. Tallmadge Root, Somerville; vice-presidents, Mrs. S. H. Whitney, Providence; secretary, Mrs. Archibald MacGregor, Hyde Park; treasurer, Miss Mary Page, Lynn; directors, Mrs. Fred A. Wilson, Nahant; Mrs. Arthur Stanley, Hyde Park; Mrs. Joshua B. Hale, Providence; Mrs. P. Edmund Rose, Somerville; Mrs. J. O. Wellington, Belmont; Mrs. Newell C. Maynard, Haverhill; Mrs. George E. Whitehill, Everett, and Mrs. George L. Parker, Newton Centre.

LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP

RADIO DETECTOR MAY BE MADE AT HOME

Range of Crystal Type Is Only About Twenty-Five Miles, Expert Says

By A. B. HOAG.

The one prime essential of a receiving radiophone set is a detector of some kind.

In the instructions for setting up a radiophone receiver that appeared in last Saturday's column, a crystal detector was mentioned. This is the simplest sort of detector, but its available range is limited to about twenty-five miles. If you live in or near Boston, you would be able to hear Medford with it, but not the more distant stations.

The value of the crystal detector depends on the fact that certain crystals have the unusual property of permitting a flow of electricity in only one direction.

ALTERNATING CURRENT.

The current which is produced in the aerial and the secondary circuits when radio waves impinge on the aerial, is a rapidly alternating one. That is, it flows first in one direction and then in the other, changing sometimes as frequently as 200,000 times a second.

This is far too fast for the ear to detect, so that it is necessary to reduce the frequency of change, but still retain the original characteristics of the wave. The crystal detector does this.

Some portions of a particular crystal are more sensitive than others. The crystal is likely to be more efficient, too, under a particular pressure.

AIDS CRYSTAL CONTACT.

Therefore the purpose of a crystal detector is to supply some mechanical means for keeping a crystal in contact with both sides of a radio circuit and for allowing a change of pressure on the crystal.

1 bakelite or hard rubber base, 4½ inches long, 2½ inches wide, ¾ inch thick.
1 piece of galena mounted on cup, obtainable from any radio supply store for about 35 cents.
1 brass or copper strip.
2 inches of phosphor bronze or copper wire, No. 28 or 30.
1 round brass rod, 1-16 of an inch or 3-32 of an inch in diameter, 2½ inches long, threaded to take hard rubber handle.

Drill an 8-32 inch hole ⅝ of an inch from both ends in centre of base to take binding posts and drill another 8-32 inch hole 1⅜ inch from edge on left side to take crystal cup. Take the copper or brass strip, square up and mark off.

MOUNT BINDING POST.

To mount detector cup and binding post after the three holes are drilled, mount the binding post and metal strip as illustrated. Make a spring out of the phosphor bronze or copper wire as shown, soldering it to the end of the rod. This is the catwhisker.

Adjust the catwhisker so that it is possible to vary the pressure which it exerts on the crystal. When you have tuned your set, try varying pressures on the crystal, and move the catwhisker about over the surface of the crystal until you find the most sensitive spot and pressure.

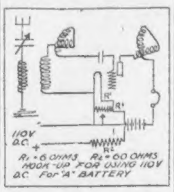
Radio Question Box

Q.—Having recently constructed a loose coupler, and using a condenser and crystal detector, I have been able to pick up Medford Hillside and your news items.

In the building where I live we have 110 volt D. C. current. Would it be possible to step this down to smaller voltage so that one could use an audion bulb and "B" battery? We should like to do away with purchasing a storage battery.—W. E. S., Boston.

A.—This is the most satisfactory hook-up for using 110 volt, D. C. in place of the storage battery that I have seen.



You will note that when all of R1 is cut out, the resistance of the filament will send the current along the "short cut," so that the filament is not lighted. As the resistance of R1 is slowly let in, more and more current will be sent through the filament. Do not let in all of R1, or you will burn out the tube. Use extreme care in letting in more resistance that the filament is never lighted too brightly.

Q.—Would it be possible to make a radio receiving set for something under ten dollars?—T. F., Roxbury.

A.—Such a set is possible if some of the apparatus is home-made. See directions in yesterday's and today's American.

Q.—I have been told that the following outfit will catch the broadcasts. Two pieces of carbon with a needle laid across, one wire to run from one carbon to the ground and one from other carbon to a bed spring. The receiver will also be attached to the carbons, together with a condenser.—C. G., Boston.

A.—Under extraordinary ideal conditions, such a combination might work, but it is very far from being a practical set. See the column for the answers to your other questions.

Q.—Can you give me the name and address of the radiophone station the call letters of which are WWJ? Also will you tell me where I can get a list of the various amateur and commercial radiophone stations?—S. E. W., Newton Centre.

A.—John Wanamaker, New York. Amateur stations are listed in an amateur call book, purchasable at a radio supply store. Commercial stations are listed in "Radio Stations of the United States," procurable from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., in return for ten cents, not in stamps.

Q.—I have a model ER 753 Crystal radio receiver made by the General Electric Company. Can I hear Medford broadcast with it out here with a four-wire aerial, one and one-half feet apart, and 75 feet long. It is about 25 miles from Medford. Can you tell me how to tune it, as I did not get any directions with it.—G. W. G., Whitman.

A.—You would hear Medford with varying success with a fifty-foot aerial. If you can find a way to string a single wire from 75 to 100 feet long in place of your present aerial, you would probably have much better success. A fifty-foot aerial is pretty short, and the additional wires make only a little difference.

Every make of instrument tunes differently, and you should get your dealer to show you how. There are probably two adjustments, the tuner and the crystal. See that the crystal and needle are in contact; and then twist the tuner dial slowly until you hear a click in the phones. This click marks the place where the instrument is in tune. By carrying the pressure on the crystal and by varying the position of the crystal you will be able to find the most sensitive spot and pressure.

LODGE EXPLAINS ARMS PACT TO ROTARIANS

Wildly Acclaimed by 1,000 Members of Club From All New England

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge received an ovation from 1,000 Rotarians from all parts of New England when he appeared as the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the Boston Rotary Club at the City Club today.

When introduced by Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard as a Senator who "has served five terms and will shortly login his sixth," the Nahant statesman was cheered for a space of two minutes.

The Senator devoted his speech to a defense of the four-power treaty and the Disarmament Conference.

"The vast majority of the people of this country were in favor of disarmament," he said. It was agreed by all that such a move was the only possible way to avert another such catastrophe as swept all Europe a few years ago.

"America could not disarm alone. There is nothing so likely to produce war as a rich country that is powerless and helpless. It was only by international agreement that disarmament could be brought about. And so America was glad to join in the conference when the opportunity came.

"I believe the result of the recent conference will prove an everlasting blessing to America and all mankind. I believe time will prove my statement is right.

"The four-power treaty also will prove of wonderful benefit to the world at large. It is not an alliance — it is merely an agreement which provides a way to avert the tragedies of war.

"Had such a treaty existed in 1914 the European war could have been averted. Germany would never have dared to strike in the face of such a combination of nations.

"Under the treaty the four most powerful nations of the earth now can settled their problems in peace. They will stand as a powerful warning against nations that might be planning outside agreements.

"The treaty offers a peaceful solution to the Far Eastern situation and will eventually allay all the war talk that has for years been disturbing Japan."

IRISH ENVOY QUITS ARGENTINE REPUBLIC

Buenos Aires, April 5 (By Associated Press)—Laurence Ginnell, who came here last year as an envoy from the Dail Eireann seeking the recognition of the Irish Republic, has closed his office here and sailed for Ireland. Ginnell issued a long farewell message to "the friends of Ireland in South America" in which he characterized the "fall of the republic" as the greatest Irish disaster since the death of Owen Roe O'Neill in 1649. He regarded this as only temporary, however.

DISCHARGED EMPLOYE SHOOTS 4, KILLS 1

Chicago, April 5.—With a gun in each hand, a man entered the W. J. Jones Foundry Company plant this afternoon, and shot four men, killing one of them. He was Lloyd Hall, the superintendent of the plant.

The man's name is said to be Fafold. The man killed was Hector Bergstrun, chief clerk of the plant. It was said the man who did the shooting was an ex-employe seeking revenge for having been discharged.

200 LAWRENCE MEN OUT, REFUSE 35 CENTS HOUR

Lawrence, April 5.—Claiming that 35 cents an hour for a nine-hour day is too small pay, 200 laborers employed by the O'Mahoney estate struck today. They had just been put to work on sewer construction on property being developed on Lawrence street.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks-Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have.

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasant results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets as the successful substitute for calomel now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

ARMS PARLEY IS DISCUSSED BY LODGE

United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge declared that an end to naval armament competition had been reached through the recent disarmament conference in Washington, in an address before the members of the Temple Ohabei Shalom at the Hotel Somerset.

The Senator stated that, while the offer of America to scrap ships was the sensational feature of the conference, the most important phase was the agreement whereby the tonnage of each ship was limited to 35,000 tons and the calibre of the guns limited.

The Senator and Mayor Curley were the principal guests at the banquet and ball given in aid of the fund for the new temple to be erected on Beacon street, Brookline. When they were escorted into the banquet hall they received a great ovation.

Mayor Curley spoke of the onward movement of the members of the congregation to better conditions under which they live and worship, and by so doing, he said, they make for themselves better citizens of a great city.

Rabbi Harry Levi, Rabbi Samuel J. Abrams, Mrs. Henry Penn and Rabbi Samuel Hirshberg of Milwaukee were other speakers. Frederic Wingersky, president of the brotherhood connected with the temple, was toastmaster.

SO. END MAN STABBED, WOMAN IS ARRESTED

Bleeding profusely from six stab wounds about the head and face, Charles Wokela, twenty-six years old, Fitchburg World War veteran, was found lying in a pool of blood at Shawmut avenue and Dover street, South End, last night.

A woman, pursued through several side streets, was arrested charged with the offence as she was about to enter a Compton street lodging. She gave her name as Bessie Lasso, of No. 10 Middlesex street.

Wokela is at the City Hospital in a critical condition. The police declared the Lasso woman to have been a former sweetheart of Wokela.

BUSINESS MEN TO DISCUSS BONUS

Both sides of the question of adjusted compensation for veterans will be presented at a luncheon meeting arranged by the Boston Chamber of Commerce to be held in the library of the Chamber Building, next Monday noon. Frederick S. Snyder, president of Batchelder & Snyder, and a director of the Chamber of Commerce, will oppose adjusted compensation. James J. Mullen, clerk of the Charlestown Court, will represent the American Legion, and present the veterans' views so as in favor of adjusted compensation.

COURT ENDS SHOE STRIKE IN BROCKTON

Brockton, April 5.—A stipulation was filed with Judge Bishop in the Superior Court today by which trees are restored to their jobs at the Victory Shoe Company under conditions that existed prior to the strike that occurred Monday while a petition for order of notice to prevent the strike was being argued in court. The man against whom discrimination by the employer was alleged by the Treers' Union as grounds for calling the strike, also is restored to his job.

'Flapper' or 'Vamp' Is Seen as Successor to Madonna

That the Madonna as the ideal of womanhood is in danger of being replaced by the "flapper" or "vamp," was the statement made by Dr. E. T. Root, secretary of the Massachusetts State Federation of Churches, in an address before the Council of the Federation of Women's Church Societies in the Church of the New Jerusalem, Bowdoin street.

Dr. Root also warned of the menace in young girls demanding that they be allowed the same freedom as young men.

MAYOR CURLEY CALLS HEALTH CONFERENCE

With a view of obtaining the cooperation of the insurance and all other agencies and the utilization of the present health units established in the congested districts of the city, Mayor Curley has extended an invitation to the insurance companies and organizations engaged in health work to attend a conference at the office of Mayor Curley at City Hall on the afternoon of April 11.

WANTS ALL WHO SERVED TO BE HONORED

Remember the maimed and crippled heroes of the war undergoing a "living death" as well as those who died "over there," Mayor James M. Curley asks Governor Channing H. Cox.

In a letter to the Governor he suggests that, while the naming of city street intersections after heroes of the war is very well, the names of all who served be inscribed on bronze plaques in state armories.

"I suggest to Your Excellency," writes the Mayor, "that you recommend legislation requiring the State to place on enduring bronze in State armories in the various cities and towns throughout the Commonwealth the names of all who served, from those several cities and towns, in the World War and all who have been wounded or who died in service, and where in any city or town there is no State armory that some fitting memorial be raised and maintained."

ENDLESS CHAIN NETS BONUS PETITIONS

Hundreds Signing in American's Plan to Present Greatest Plea Ever

Endless Chain Week in aid of the Soldiers' Bonus petition is proving a big success.

Hundreds of signatures have been added to the Boston American's Soldiers' Bonus petition as a result of the plan. They have come from all parts of New England.

Everybody is invited to participate in the Endless Chain plan. The plan is to sign the petition appearing on this page and then get three men or women friends to add their names. As each friend signs, ask him to get three of his acquaintances to do likewise. In this manner the Boston American hopes to build up the biggest petition ever presented to Congress.

That the passage of the adjusted compensation act will be of tremendous assistance to many suffering ex-service men and their families is proved by the pitiful letters received daily by the Petition Editor.

WIFE PROVES NEED.

An Abington woman, who signs herself "A disabled soldier's wife," writes: "I do not know what the financial conditions of other soldiers and their families are, nor how they are concerning the passing of the Soldiers' Bonus bill, but I do know of the conditions of our family when my husband's return from France.

"My husband and I would so much wish for a bonus if he could only obtain enough wages for us to exist without getting in debt. Owing to labor conditions we have found it nearly impossible. We have furnishings only for a bedroom and kitchen. If we have company they have to be entertained in the kitchen.

"We tried to buy a quart of milk every other day, but had to stop to keep from getting into debt. We have used only a ton and a half of coal this Winter. We need coal now, but haven't the money with which to buy it. I have bought only a coat, hat and dress since my husband came back from France.

HAVE NO BATHROOM.

"My husband has not bought a suit yet since his return from overseas. He had his army overcoat dyed and has worn that. We have two children and I make all their clothes. We still owe the doctor for my last confinement. We have no bathroom in our house and cannot afford to live where the rent is higher. My husband spent two years in the service and would not want a bonus if he could earn enough money to pay expenses.

"I think there are many more soldiers whose families are having the same hardships as we. For God's sake, if they don't give the ex-service men a bonus, why don't they find employment for men who have little children depending on them before their patience and courage have been tried too far."

From a Providence veteran came the following:

"I haven't worked for seven months except once in a while I've got something to do—just enough to get something to eat. I am getting discouraged as I am often hungry. It's a shame that ex-service men can't get work."

Cornelio Balmaceda of Harvard University, president of the Filipino Students' Association of New England, will deliver a lecture next Monday night, on the Philippine Islands at Pere Marquette Council K. of C. The lecture will deal with the past and present conditions in the Philippines, showing the remarkable progress attained under the American administration.

Every Signer a Link in New Bonus Chain

THIS is Endless Chain Week in the drive to make the Soldiers' Bonus petition the biggest in history.

The plan is for every advocate of the bonus to sign the petition and get at least three others to sign it. Then have each of the three get at least three more signatures, and so on.

Petition for Soldier Bonus and Sales Tax

WE respectfully petition Congress to pass the Soldiers' Bonus act without further delay and also to levy a Sales Tax to obtain the money to pay the Bonus.

TOMMY NELSON IS SENT AWAY FROM HERE

Tommy has spent 14 years of his life in iron-barred coast resorts which open only when a turnkey operates a seven-pound key.

He moves from Montreal to Key West today.

Today he left Municipal Court to spend a year in the House of Correction. He had been found guilty of conducting illegal fishing expeditions in the pockets of William Ryan of Gloucester.

"Look for your pocketbook," said the patrolman.

Ryan did.

BODY OF ARLINGTON YOUTH ARRIVES HOME

The body of Ernest Peter Hommel, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hommel of No. 31 Dudley street, Arlington, who had been away from his home in Arlington since last August, and who with three other young men was sophisticated in a freight car at Irvington, N. J., has been found. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning. It was through a story in the newspapers that the Hommels learned of their son's tragic death.

LOST MAIL POUCH FOUND IN RIVER

'FRAMED' POLICE CAPTAIN BACK ON DUTY

Eugene P. Brogan was reinstated as captain of the Swampscott police department by the selectmen at a special town meeting, following a finding by District Court Judge Reeve, that the selectmen had acted "unwisely, unfairly and without good reason" in abolishing his office on February 25 last.

Captain Brogan returns to duty tonight with the pay of the office accruing since its abolishment and his demotion to patrolman. He charged that he was the victim of a "frameup."

HOTEL JOBLESS TO KEEP ON GOING

Manager Kane Denies Mr. Zero's Refuge for 'Shorn Lambs of Labor' Is Broke

The Hotel Jobless, on Howard street, refuge of the "shorn lambs of labor," will not have to close April 30 because of lack of funds.

So declared Patrick Kane, manager of the hotel, today in reputation of reports that a hurry call had been issued for Urbain J. Ledoux, millionaire founder of the resort, to hustle back to town and save the hotel from going on the financial rocks.

"You can say there is absolutely no truth to those stories at all," asserted Manager Kane. "The hotel is not in any financial difficulties, owes only a very small amount of money and is fixed to carry on indefinitely.

"We are still catering to the customary crowds and only last Thursday set a record by feeding 230 persons at one meal. Mr. Ledoux is out on the Coast and keeps in touch with us at regular intervals. We have sent him no appeal for financial aid and don't intend to—not just now, anyhow.

"We are running the hotel on the same policy as before the signs followed since it started. We are meeting our bills and obeying the laws, and invite inspection by the general public at any time."

Kane said he took over management of the place when the original manager, Miss Ellen H. Lehman, broke a leg in February. She is now at the City Hospital.

He thought the fact that she had disappeared from the hotel possibly started the present rumors that the place is preparing to close.

SIMMONS GIRLS TO 'BLACKEN UP' FOR FUND

A WEDDING BELLE! Dorothy Clark, petite seventeen-year-old dancer, whose mother has sued Herbert Rawlinson, movie star, for $200,000, and who yesterday became the bride of Karl L. Elms, Boston piano salesman at Nashua, N. H. The girl denies the actor attacked her

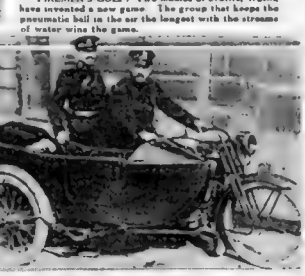
MISS PENELOPE CURTIN, daughter of the late police commissioner Edwin U. Curtis, who will receive half of the income from a trust fund created by the will of her father

AN OLD WAG! Champion Ajax Von Luxenberg is not only a "bag full of tricks," but he's probably the most famous American bred shepherd dog in the country. He was one of the features at the Chicago Dog Show. (Underwood.)

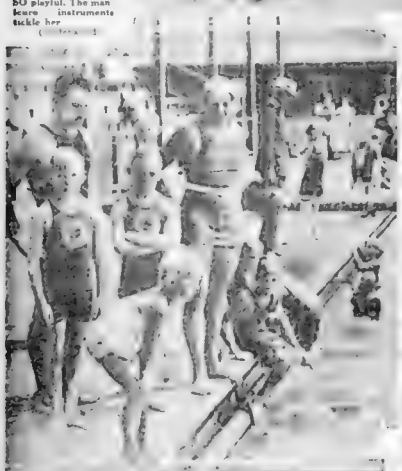


FIREMEN'S GOLF! Fire laddies at Seattle, Wash., have invented a new game. The group that keeps the pneumatic ball in the air the longest with the streams of water wins the game.

WHY They Don't Want It To Rain That Day! Gladys Crabtree is here shown implanting an "Immortal Kiss" during a rehearsal of the annual fete conducted by the co-eds at the University of California. Just $3,000 rain insurance is carried on this event.

COMBINING SPEED AND CONVENIENCE! The French ambulance police now have an emergency fleet of motorcycles and side cars for the conveyance of urgent street cases to the hospital quickly. The patient may easily be lifted out of the side car on a pannier.

NICE KITTY! Many manicurists have been known to say they hate to manicure "cats." Here is M. Rouland cutting "Bowlsy's" nails, the lioness at the Paris Zoo. They tied her because she is SO playful. The manicure instruments tickle her (Underwood)



PAULINE VIRGINIA CLARK, whose mother, Mrs. Sarah Herrick is now convinced that her daughter committed suicide during a gay party in the girl's Newbury street apartment. She still believes, however, that Otto Haldor Larsen induced her daughter to take her life. The mother is in seclusion in or near Boston.

A PINT O' MERMAID! You'll recognize at least one champion swimmer in this photograph—the little girl in white. She is Virginia Stamms, 6 years old, and the wonder of the swimming pool at Balboa, Panama Canal Zone. She has broken all records for her age. At her right is the world's champion, Ethelda Bleibtrey, who is visiting the canal region.

NEW CURLS FOR THE TWISTS AND TWURLS! There were a lot of curlicues out at the Berlin Hair Dressers' Convention. Nearly every male hair dresser in Europe that amounted to anything, goodness knows, was present to switch around. And listen, girls, the idea of the convention, imagine, was to decide who was the world's "champeen" hair dresser as to style, perfection of execution and methods adopted. This picture shows the contestants contessing. (International News Reel.)

Peoples Credit Company

A Quarter of a Century of Achievement

From little acorns big oak trees grow—From a small beginning in a little room on Temple Place, opened on April 1, 1897, by N. Sallinger, there developed the largest credit business in this part of the United States; with branches located in the largest cities of New England.

The reasons for this remarkable growth are manifold. Years of devotion to the principle that the credit business should be on the same high plane as the big retail cash stores, and constant striving to maintain that high purpose, has resulted in obtaining the confidence of the great credit buying public. This confidence, respected and cherished, is responsible for the great growth of this business. The Sallinger pride of achievement is based upon retaining the public confidence for a quarter of a century.

The Famous
Order Check
Used by Thousands
For Credit
Department
And Other Stores

N. SALLINGER is the originator of the famous Order Check which opens the Big Department and other stores to the people who desire credit on the basis of $1.00 a week payments—with his order check you can now buy anything on credit at any kind of a cash store.

ECONOMICAL CREDIT

Our customers are treated with the same consideration as those in the big cash stores. Our order check system is conceded to be the most inexpensive ever originated in the credit business. Our customers realize that the percentage of cost to them when buying here is far less than elsewhere. This is not only true with our order check system, but it is equally true of merchandise purchased direct from our stock. From time to time we have endeavored to sense desires of our customers and for this reason we have at various periods added different departments for their convenience

Boston Opening

On April 1, 1897, with a staff consisting of himself and an office boy, who is still in his employ, N. Sallinger started a small credit business in one room at 58 Temple Place. A few years later he moved to a larger room at 523 Washington St. Then again finding his quarters too small he secured still larger floor space at 493 Washington St. In 1903 the rapidly increasing business forced him to seek an entire floor at 433 Washington St., in the old building on the site now occupied by Gilchrist Co.

It was at this corner that the growth of his business developed in a big way. Surrounding himself with capable and efficient employes trained in cash store methods only and taught to be courteous, reliable and responsible, the business began to appeal to thousands who never had purchased on credit before and the clientele soon included the very best class of salaried people of Boston and vicinity.

In 1911, again finding his quarters too small, he secured the largest floor in Boston at 501 Washington St., the present location of N. SALLINGER, INC.

Providence, Springfield and Worcester Opened

In April, 1912, N. Sallinger opened his first branch, Providence, R. I. In June, 1915, another branch in Springfield, Mass., was established, and in March, 1921, the fourth Sallinger credit establishment was located at Worcester, Mass. N. Sallinger also operates a number of cash stores, some devoted to the sale of Men's Clothing and others to the sale of Women's Wearing Apparel.

During the past two years the House acquired another floor at 501 Washington St., for its new Women's Wearing Apparel Department, which was opened in March, 1920. This magnificent floor, fitted with all the luxuriousness possible, is the most beautiful of its kind in Boston and an added convenience to our women patrons. Subsequently we are to take over the entire building of five floors, all to be devoted to the further development of the N. Sallinger Credit Service, already the Greatest in America.

VICTORY OVER SIEGAL GIVES SHADE NEW HOPE FOR TITLE GO

By JACK CONWAY.

Dave Shade continued his brilliant ring career when he battered his way to decisive victory in his ten-round bout with Nate Siegal at the Boston Arena. Not more than a good fans saw the Winner welter weight from the Pacific Coast outfight and outbox New England's ring idol.

The result of the tussle was a d[illegible] surprise to Siegal's [illegible] admirers but it roused a [illegible] interest for those fans who [illegible] the fighters on the Boston Arena [illegible] Shade would win [illegible] early in the week was 10 to 8 with Siegal the favorite. When the Boston American naturally [illegible] in favor on the eve of the bout the odds shifted to 10 to 8 on Siegal later to even money.

After both [illegible] Shade was the class of the [illegible] and that he should [illegible] his way to another [illegible] up.

Shade's Left Hand and Speed Give Him a Win

Shade [illegible] to save himself with [illegible] left to both the head and body and [illegible] speed were the factors that turned the tide of battle in his favor.

The Coast youth is a fun-[illegible]ing jack-fighter of the Johnny Lander school. At times he would drop his head and body forward and his jaw was lower than his knees. Then he would suddenly bob in the air and bring his left hand whizzing through the air. His punch drove Siegal's head back and his jaw or bony head in his opponent's body. Then Mr. Nate could not [illegible] and on several would dart out of the danger zone.

Shade Wins Eight Out of the Ten Rounds

Shade won eight out of the ten rounds. He had the advantage in every chapter [illegible] the second and fifth when [illegible] Siegal out-fought [illegible] it very difficult to catch up with the ring-[illegible] Shade and his actual at [illegible]

Neither fighter was [illegible] cuts up as a result of the contest. Siegal [illegible] a cut lip while the [illegible] and puffing around the [illegible] was to open [illegible] Shade but [illegible] for his [illegible] of terrific punishment.

The boxers fought at a very [illegible] pace from start to finish. The ninth round was the only one that could be called slow. Shade and Siegal both loafed considerably in this frame as they were resting up for the rough finish.

Referee Noah Perry and Judges W. J. McDermott and Dick Hinahaw all cast their ballots for Shade. It was the only proper thing under the circumstances.

Terrin Wins in Ring, but Loses in Dressing Room

Sammy Terrin of St. Paul won over Shaver O'Brien of South Boston in the semi-final of eight rounds. Terrin had a decided margin. Terrin was later attacked by thugs in his dressing room and handled [illegible]

[illegible] Jack Gilfeather, the New England youth made Shade realize he was in a fight before he got the [illegible] most of the rounds. He was also willing to engage in an exchange of blows but found [illegible] Lynch and Martin to Battle Next Week

BEAUTY'S WORTH

The Delightful Love Story of a Quaker Maid

A Fascinating Romance in Which an Ingenious and Beautiful Girl Finds the Rainbow's End

THE ACTION SO FAR

Prudence Cole, whose ancestors founded the Quaker settlement of Pottstown, finds herself as a little girl left motherless. Her father leaves her to be brought up by two sisters—the Misses Elizabeth and Cynthia Whitney. Wine she is with them being reared in the old homestead, her father dies. Prudence is the delight of her relatives. She weaves a girlish romance about Henry Garrison, a good-looking boy, and defends him against the aspirations of a newcomer, Cheyne Rovein, whose language shocks the aunts. The Garrisons leave Pottstown and Prudence laments. Prudence visits them at Haven, a fashionable seashore resort. At her request, Rovein, the famous artist, agrees to manage the charades for the society set.

("Beauty's Worth" has been created into a Photo Play by Cosmopolitan productions; story by Sophie Kerr; scenario by Luther Reed; direction of Robert G. Vignola. It will be released as a Paramount picture.)

HE laughed and held out his hand. "I don't think it was a bargain. To mind with a great show of spirit, "but you must promise to do exactly as I say and we'll make the young man play dead dog and like it."

The shake of the hands established their friendship on a sure basis. Prudence had the feeling that Rovein was something more than a friend in need; he was a real man.

"The first thing we'll have to do," he assured her, "will be to figure out just what you have to wear; you know these people have their own ideas of dress, and the only way to get at them is to beat them to it."

"I'm afraid my wardrobe will seem very simple—I'm a Quaker, thee knows."

"Not a bit to me. I like my [illegible] simplicity—I'd rather see you in that becoming gown than all the trumperies of those empty-pated society seals you were with a while ago."

"But tell me," curiously got the better of her, "why is thee doing all this for me?"

"Ah, if that is as clever as they say thee is—that a for th-e to find out—one would at him as she retraced her steps, leaving him laughing.

Absent minded, he leaned against a tree—if to be absent minded is to confess on the part of the world [illegible] Within the [illegible] Within the [illegible] Son and [illegible] boy with [illegible] was going to make Henry play dead dog and like it.

Under ordinary circumstances he would have [illegible] not to do anything for the vacuous Henry, but he was doing this for the little Quaker girl and he consoled himself with the reflection that if she should really cling to [illegible] of a suitor [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

"Pick up the stuff," he cried to [illegible] "and [illegible] play [illegible]

Not [illegible] said the astonished [illegible]

"Don't see how I can paint if you pick the stuff up, do you?"

She went back to the hotel light hearted as well as lightfooted. She had been dared to bend the irascible woman's bare and had made him her own; he was now her partner in a scheme to conquer the young man whom she had long worshipped from afar.

She burst into her room and amazed the sedate Jane with an account of her little journey along the coast.

"And he's going to see I have the proper clothes—wonderful clothes—what does thee think's of that?"

What Jane thought of it she expressed by throwing up her [illegible] and [illegible] disapproval questions indicative of a fear that her young charge had gone suddenly mad.

And when finally Prudence explained that she had found the necromancer who would transform her into a radiant beauty, Jane again protested that it was obviously impossible since she was that already.

"That's very nice of thee, Jane, but it all depends on the eyes we see with—the people here—Mrs. Garrison's friends don't see with our eyes and it's to them we've got to go for an opinion."

Mr. Rovein in due time made his appearance in Miss Cole's sitting room; with him was his man Friday, with Prudence was Jane; the faithful serving woman was introduced.

"You'll like each other," said Prudence, "because you both play chess."

Peter cast an appraising eye on the woman who could play chess while Rovein proceeded to business.

"So long as you've really persuaded me against my will to amuse the society seals—why not walk down and tell them?"

Now that the time had come to announce her triumph, Prudence felt unequal to the task. She ended by pointing to Rovein and saying rather lamely, "You asked me to see Mr. Rovein and I have and he's consented."

"Yes, Miss Cole has persuaded me to take charge of the charades, and I've consented to do so on one condition—that I be given an absolutely free hand——"

"I'm doing this as a favor to Miss Cole—I want that understood, too."

Henry glanced at Amy and Amy glanced at [illegible]

"I [illegible] went on, "that we [illegible] in the costumes [illegible] and [illegible] Dare? was daring to the point of [illegible] and [illegible] I [illegible] at her [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

FINANCE and BUSINESS

—By B. C. Forbes—

A poor, ignorant immigrant was landing in this country. The immigration officer treated him like a dog. He growled at the inoffensive newcomer that it was the like of him who were ruining America, and he wanted to know why in thunder this intruder had come to plague people with his presence here.

Ignorant though he was, the immigrant was at pains to find out the immigration official's name and status. Also, he made it his business to ascertain from time to time whether this official was still on the job.

* * *

When his bank account took on $100,000, he sought out the immigration official who had so grossly and unnecessarily insulted him when he first landed. Then he addressed him in some such words as these:

"In the year —— I landed in this country. I had to pass through your hands. You swore at me and my kind, and treated me and others like dogs. You said it was the like of me that were ruining this country. Well, I have succeeded in building up an honest, useful and honorable business, and can today write my name to a check for $100,000. How far have you progressed in the same time? Not a d—— bit."

Then it went on to read the immigration man a lecture on courtesy and kindness.

* * *

This true incident came to my mind this week, when I had occasion to go to the dock and stand sponsor for an arrival from the other side of the Atlantic. After an unconscionably long wait, I was summoned before the immigration officer, who began quizzing me after the manner of a tenth-rate lawyer subjecting a criminal to cross-examination. My only interest in the matter was an unselfish desire to aid a fellow mortal battling from the native land. I was very willing to answer any and every question within my power; but I confess I did not like the boorish treatment to which this sincerompoop subjected me.

* * *

I noticed that the scores of passengers who sat around waiting their turns to appear before his majesty looked cowed and awestricken. I made inquiries, and was told of several incidents concerning the incendiary, arrogant, autocratic conduct of this tin-pot immigration Czar.

* * *

If you or I had an unmannerly specimen of this kind in our employ, I wouldn't we promptly dismiss him?

* * *

As he was doing the high-and-mighty pose, my mind reverted to the manners and bearing of this fellow's supreme boss, Secretary of Labor Davis, to whom I had talked a few weeks previously. I have heard Mr. Davis tell he pathetic story of his own first landing in this country, and I said to myself, "If Mr. Davis were sitting in this boor's place, how differently he would treat the anxious, trembling men and women appearing before him."

* * *

How many of us occupying humble or high station retard our progress and injure our happiness by failing to exercise courtesy and kindness as we journey along the pathway of life? How many of us are given to fawning upon those above us, and to frowning on those we regard as below us on the social scale? We are constantly reading about how important it is for an employe to be polite, etc., if he aspires to get on. Yet many employers who have suffered quite as much through their impoliteness and boorishness as any employe ever could suffer, I have known big men who couldn't secure the services of brainy men they wanted simply because the brainy men did not relish the idea of being associated with a tyrannical boor.

* * *

When you think deeply enough, you realize that success consists of doing something which pleases other people. The pleasing of them may take the form of supplying them with goods they like better than any other goods; it may take the form of filling a political office acceptably to the majority of voters; it may take the form of painting pictures or writing books which please the public immensely; it may take the form of conceiving inventions or healing diseases with unprecedented skill.

* * *

A few hours ago a man told me he had just landed a very important contract. He said:

"It's curious, isn't it, how things work out? Eleven years ago I did some work for a concern a certain young man was interested in. His father is now head of a very large enterprise, and when this question of getting a man to handle this work came up, the president's son at once said he knew the man who could handle it successfully. They got in touch with me, and I've landed the contract."

* * *

Is it not true that none of us, either in business or out of business, can afford to treat others discourteously, harshly, boorishly?

Stocks Close Strong in New York; Trading Active; Money Steady at 4½%

RAILS BECAME THE MARKET LEADERS

Good Gains Made in a Million-Share Market; Specialties Up Several Points

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at the close of a million-share session. The market was at its best in the last hour, when gains of three or four points were recorded. Specialties were among the strongest issues.

General Electric was up 4¾, at 164, at the top; New York Central & Western climbed 2¾, to 57¾; Sears Roebuck 2, to 72; Studebaker 2¾, to 92; U. S. Rubber 2¾, at 64¾; Westinghouse Electric 2¾, to 46; Royal Dutch 2¼, to 57½; Mexican Petroleum 2¾, to 125; Kelsey Wheel 2⅞, to 110, and Baldwin 2⅝, to 115.

Bears who had expected a continuation of the Monday reaction at the opening today were disappointed. The market had a strong start, although gains did not average large. Sugars, low-priced oils and specialties commanded attention in early trading. Before the first hour profit taking by professionals reduced gains for steels, oils and rails. But the market's tendency was brief. A higher price level was reached in the second hour. The market then showed fair to noontime, although there was a setback for Mexican, coal, common and preferred dropping from one to two points. By afternoon the tone was better than ever. Rails had assumed leadership.

A morning episode was a 43-point jump by Eastman Kodak to 144. Record highs were established in the forenoon by Davison Chemical and Allied Chemical. High for this year or last were attained by many issues during the session, including American Smelting, U. S. Smelting, Cuddy Oil, Baldwin, Associated Oil, Railway Steel Spring, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Westinghouse Electric, Montgomery Ward, Barnsdall, General Motors, General Electric, New York, Ontario and Western, Royal Dutch and Norfolk and Western.

Studebaker and Chandler led the motors. Baldwin was the strongest equipment and Crucible made the best showing among steel. Rail leaders were Reading, Central and Reading. Punta Alegre led Cuba Cane preferred made good gains. Volume was large for the hour in the morning, Anaconda, Utah and Inspiration gaining the most. Mexican Petroleum was up more than five points at 9½ highest. News in general was regarded as favorable, but opinion was active. Short covering continued.

Call money opened at 4½ per cent. Foreign exchanges was up at the start, but reacted somewhat during the morning.

Stocks Advanced Steadily in N. Y.

By W. S. COUSINS.

New York, April 5.—Under more orderly proceedings and with a smaller volume of sales, the stock market moved steadily forward to higher prices today. The set-back which took place in the last hour yesterday was generally regarded as improvement in the technical position of the market and a good many speculators took advantage of the opportunity to buy stocks which were comparatively low after the high points of Monday and Tuesday.

The market shifted about rather aimlessly until the early afternoon, ignoring the speculative issues that have been furnishing all the fireworks for two weeks and selecting the market priced issues which are most likely to benefit in the near future by the gradual return of normal business conditions. As soon as attention was focussed upon these issues, there was no trouble to chase them in the market, it was found necessary to bid higher prices and gains of from one to 3 points were not infrequent in coppers, oils, industrials and railroad shares.

N. Y. Bond Market Turns Irregular

By MUNROE ROBERTS.
Copyright, 1922, Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 5.—Irregularity developed in the bond market today, especially in the semi-speculative issues, which sold off fractionally from their recent high points. Liberty bonds were steady and foreign bonds dull.

The first Liberty sold at 99.28, second 4¼s at 98.96, third 4¼s at 99.54 and the fourth 4¼s at 99.10. The Victory 3¾s were traded in at 100.04, while the Victory 4¾s sold up to 100.06.

Mexican 4s sold down to 54¾, which insurance companies gained half a point and sold up to 55. United Kingdom 5s of 1937 were in good demand, but offerings were unchanged. Belgian 8s were unchanged at 103½, Italian 6½s at 94¾.

Southern Air Line refunding 4s made a new high at 63, up one point. M. K. & T. 2d 4s improved up to 53; Burlington 6½s at 106¾ were off ⅝; I. R. T. 5s at 86 were up 1½, and L. N. 7s sold at 60.

Firm Tone to the Curb Market

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, April 5.—There was a firm tone to the Curb market today and prices were for the most part inclined upward.

RETAIL PRICES ARE BEING CUT SOME

But Evans Says People Should Have Better Idea of What Is Done

By C. B. EVANS

Chicago, April 5.—An army of ferrets—the human kind, are of course the most skilful—should be employed in this country to obtain information regarding retail prices.

We have investigated and statistician every thing else in economics and we wonder all about the reparation payments and the cost of a good of grain in Russia, but what we know about the prices of our household supplies, tobacco, clothes, etc.

It is the retail trade that touches each and every nerve in each and every citizen and is the dearest thing in our existence, from the average purchaser who wants a pair of trousers, a bag of potatoes or a piece of lace buys the goods and knows nothing about the relation of the retail price to cost.

NOT ENOUGH REDUCTION.

The casual remarks of women on such subjects count for little, for they are hickers anyway, and it is a mental habit of theirs to declare it too high." You ask a man who has given considerable attention to the subject and he says, "Yes, some, but not enough," or to a supposed reduction in prices.

We must certainly give the retailers credit for some cutting. How much or how little is throughout the country is an important question now merely as a key to the interest of the individual but as bearing on the volume of trade.

Statements based on government statistics have recently been made that retail trade is decreasing. Doubtless the aggregate of sales varied in the dollars, has fallen off, but has the government counted the number of articles passing over counters so that it is in a position to say that people are buying less in quantity than heretofore.

REPORTS OF RETAILERS.

Some reports from the big merchandising houses may be taken as indicating a turning of the subject. Sears, Roebuck & Co., reported for January a decline of 5.4 per cent. in volume of sales, as measured in dollars, of 11.35 in February and of 21.41 per cent. in March.

We know from other sources that buying has increased somewhat throughout the farming districts, but these percentages of a concern that appeals to millions marts a large decrease just in the period when advancing prices for farm products have boosted the purses of dwellers in the rural districts.

This one drop of evidence does not make a shower, to be sure, but the decrease is so much, and the evidence of declines in other directions is so clear that one may suspect a large slenting of the retail trade in these figures and possibly even an increase in the amount of goods sold.

BUYERS NOT SKIMPING.

The fact with which the average man is now buying securities may be considered evidence that he is not skimping in this line as a matter of personal and household supplies, and so far as one can see there is little curtailment of expenses for ordinary things except among a small class of unemployed.

It is a good guess then that it is price which gives the appearances in some instances of a decrease in the volume of the retail trade.

Nor on the higher levels is there any indication of slump. Building is on the increase in this city, because costs have been materially reduced. The builders doubtless get 25 per cent. more for a given expenditure now than they did a year ago. Certainly quantity dominated the cost in that building trade in those articles which go into the erection of a dwelling or flat house, while such as the purchase of a few thousand feet of lumber, a little cement and possibly a small quantity of steel.

MEMBERSHIP AWARDS TO BE PAID FIRST

Boston American Readers to Receive Total of $10,000 in Cash

While the Boston American's Famous Titles Test has been referred to as a "$5,000" competition, the fact that soon after the close of this contest this newspaper will pay out twice that amount, IN CASH.

Two hundred and nineteen readers will divide the Famous Titles Test $5,000, while another 219 readers will share in the $5,000 appropriated some weeks ago for a Membership Competition.

Not many readers, perhaps, care to take part in more than three title tests in a row, and to create new interest in the Famous Titles Test the sum of $5,000 was offered to the 219 persons who, having taken part in the Book Title Test, should send in the largest numbers of names of New Contestants for the Famous Titles Test.

This Membership Competition $5,000 will be paid BEFORE the Famous Titles Test awards.

MUST SEND ANSWERS.

Success in the Membership Competition depends upon whether the New Contestants whose names you send in actually are taking part in the current Title Test. To be counted in your favor they must send in a set of answers after Test Drawing No. 89 has been printed.

The question has been asked more than once whether the Boston American will put on another Membership Competition at the close of the Famous Titles Test. That depends. It will be left to participants in the present contest to say. There are many good arguments against any sort of test in the Summer season. When New England becomes America's playground it is difficult to interest folks in contests.

The prizes in both contests—Membership Competition and Famous Titles Test—are graded in the same way. These are the awards which will be paid to the 219 participants in the Famous Titles Test who send in the largest numbers of correct titles:

First Award	$1,000
Second Award	750
Third Award	500
Fourth Award	400
Fifth Award	300
Sixth Award	200
Seventh Award	150
Eighth Award	100
Ninth Award	50
100 Awards of $10 Each	1,000
110 Awards of $5 Each	550
Total	$5,000

NOT THE CASE.

Hundreds and possibly thousands of readers joined the $5,000 Famous Titles Test without knowing anything about the Membership Competition. Reading of the latter, probably some of them may get the idea that, in order to take part in this contest, it was necessary that somebody send in their names.

This is not the case. It was NOT necessary to enroll, register, or notify anyone connected with the Boston American. Names WERE sent in, only by candidates for the Membership prizes, but by thousands of "Test" readers who started this Title Tests continued, but any reader of the Boston American is eligible to the Test whether his name was sent in or not.

One or two replies to correspondents:

Mrs. C. A. R.: The marks you refer to are without any significance whatever. This is "final."

V. L. G., Springfield: No obsolete words.

SEND YOUR ADDRESS.

W. R. T., Lynn: The coupon that should have appeared with No. 11 was omitted by mistake and on the following day we printed two coupons. Send us your address and I will see that you are taken care of.

G. H. P.: What appears to be a black cat in that picture was merely a dab of printer's ink. Drawing No. 15 was printed in the Boston American, is as it should be. The so-called "cat" crept into a reprint of that number.

M. A. C., Somerville: No; there are no pictures concealed in the answer pictures.

A South Bostonian: The result of the Boston American's Name-this Auto Competition was printed on Friday, December 23, 1921. Send us your name and address and I'll see if I can get a copy of the paper for you.

Woodsville Inquirer: Yes.

V. B. B., Cambridge: Yes.

LIQUOR SCHOONER GOES THROUGH CAPE CANAL

Sandwich, April 5.—Loaded with 12,000 bottles of liquor, the power schooner Marguerite, arrived through Cape Cod Canal, escorted by a number of coast guard officials, who will stay aboard until the boat gets beyond the three-mile limit. Although "the rum vessel" passed through the canal a few days ago, bound for Boston, it is believed that her present voyage is to the Bahama Islands.

JEWISH HOPES LAID BEFORE CONGRESS

Hamilton Fish Puts in Resolve Favoring Restoration of Palestine

By Universal Service.

Washington, April 5.—A resolution expressing the hope of Congress that Palestine will be restored to the Jewish people was introduced in the House by Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York.

The resolution suited:

"Whereas, the Jewish people have for many centuries believed in and yearned for the rebuilding of their ancient homeland, and

"Whereas, owing to the outcome of the World War and their part therein, the Jewish people are under definite and adequate international guarantees are to be enabled, with due regard for the rights of all elements of the population of Palestine and to the sanctity of its holy places, to recreate and reorganize a national home in the land of their fathers, therefore

"Be it resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring, that the Congress of the United States hereby expresses its profound satisfaction in that outcome of the victorious war, which promises the building up of a new and beneficent life in Palestine. Rejoices in this act of historic justice about to be consummated, and on behalf of the American people commends an undertaking which will do honor to christendom and give to the House of Israel its long-denied opportunity to re-establish a fruitful Jewish life and culture in the ancient Jewish land."

"HEART BROKEN MOTHER" ABANDONS HER BABY

Woonsocket, R. I., April 5.—A new-born abandoned baby boy was found on the steps of a house here with a note reading, "From a heart-broken mother. Please keep this baby. I will call for it later." The baby, wrapped in neat and comfortable clothing, was discovered by Mrs. Elsie Gourneau, No. 313 Gaulin avenue. The note, written in a woman's hand, was attached to the clothing.

SCRAPPING OF SHIPS UP TO CONGRESS

Officials Refuse to Carry Out Naval Treaty Without Legal Support

By Universal Service.

Washington, April 5.—The naval treaty cannot be carried out by the American government without direct authorization from Congress, representatives of the State and navy departments informed the House Naval Affairs Committee.

The committee announced later that it would prepare legislation specifically authorizing President Harding to scrap the necessary number of naval vessels to bring the American navy within the terms of the compact.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt and Solicitor Fred Nelson of the State Department told the committee that the executive branch of the government was undecided whether to go ahead with the reduction program.

Legal advisers to the President and the cabinet differed as to whether ratification of the treaty by the Senate was all that was required. The two witnesses expressed the opinion that special legislation was necessary, and asked the committee to prepare a bill covering the matter.

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt asked that the proposed bill include only the authorization to scrap the vessels, and opposed a suggestion that legislation be incorporated with the bill fixing the authorized strength of the navy at 85,000 enlisted men which the committee reported recently. Mr. Roosevelt said that he had never favored the 86,000 navy, and that he hoped to defeat the measure.

2 CRUSHED BY STEAM SHOVEL; ONE DYING

Woonsocket, R. I., April 5.—Two men working about a steam shovel used to hoist coal at the Lafayette mill were crushed under the weight of the apparatus when it became overbalanced and crashed to the ground. One man, Emidia Coupal, forty-three years old, living on Manville road, is in a serious condition at the Woonsocket Hospital. Napoleon Blanchette, No. 57 Gaulin avenue, was also injured but not seriously.

What Does It Mean?

Its Own Makers Don't Know

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

This country is in a four-power, four-cornered treaty concerning the Pacific Ocean and the lands that various nations own there. Just exactly what that treaty means we shall of course not know for some time. Senators seem uncertain, but here and there some things come to the surface.

Last week, Senator Underwood, who sat in the conference, made clear his belief that if Russia should make an attack upon the Isle of Sakalin, in the next ten years, Russia would have to deal not only with Japan, but also with Great Britain, France and THE UNITED STATES.

When asked how the United States would be involved, his answer was "Not NECESSARILY in war." For this country to be involved "necessarily" or otherwise in war with Russia, in case Russia should attack Japan, to get even for Japanese activity in Siberia, would be more interesting than gratifying.

Give Us Old Age Pensions

They had passed by—worthy man and wife. Linked arm in arm as they had been through the years when their strength and vigor helped them to provide for themselves properly. We, who knew them, were aware that they were honestly-poor in their old age—were suffering—were face to face with need. With failing opportunity to earn as age-shadows touched them, the dreaded and gaunt signpost of the unholy-poorhouse stood hideously before them.

Too proud to beg or to be pauperized, often without proper food, slow-starvation stalked with them until death gave them that peace—beyond our understanding. They were of the best of citizens, like you, left alone, cast aside like worthless junk, as thousands were sad are along the highway of our prosperity which they had helped to build, under our neglectful, fetish-worship of the dollar-god, in ours, the richest nation in the world.

This case is typical of what may come to anyone of us, which does come to a vast majority of our aged citizens, who, properly, will not be degraded by the pauperdole. Other nations, poorer than ours, protect, respectfully, their citizens with old-age pensions, grants of money, for those who need it, as a reward of merit for services rendered in home and industry to the State, all with rights of citizenship—no touch of pauperism. Old-age pensions are more efficient, humane and decent than the degrading charity or the poorhouse system and are much less costly.

Legislation now before our Legislature follows closely the successful English old-age pensions act of 1908-12, of which Lloyd George said:

"After the first year the popularity and success of the measure, old-age pensions, was so firmly assured that at the last general election the worst accusation that anyone could bring against a candidate was that he was in favor of tampering with the first great article in the Magna Charta of the poor."

Let us demand—now—that Massachusetts destroy her degrading old-age poorhouse and pauperism and create a godly old-age pension law.

Cowardice Dangerous to All

The Timid Holdup Men

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

The most dangerous quality in man is cowardice. It ruins him and ruins others. Cowardice causes crime. Some are too cowardly to work, too cowardly to endure a hardship. And as criminals they are so cowardly that they kill from FEAR, thus causing their own death if caught.

Watch in any courtroom criminals coming up for sentence. You see undersized, timid, miserable creatures, shrunken in mind and body. No man need fear them, except that they come armed and with deadly weapons and use them through fear.

John Bruns, a grocer, about to lock up for the night, saw two very young men enter his shop, while a third stood at the doorway. When they approached him, they shook and their mouths twitched so that they could not speak. Bruns, in his dying statement, later said he suspected the youths intended to be bandits, but he was AMUSED at their evident cowardice.

He did not know how deadly cowardice could be. For when he asked roughly, "Well, what do you want?" the boy at the door, the "lookout," fired his revolver three times, at the risk of killing his fellow bandits, then all three fled. And the grocer is dead, killed by cowardice that pulled the trigger.

The disease that breeds in the slums threatens the children in the fine house on the hill.

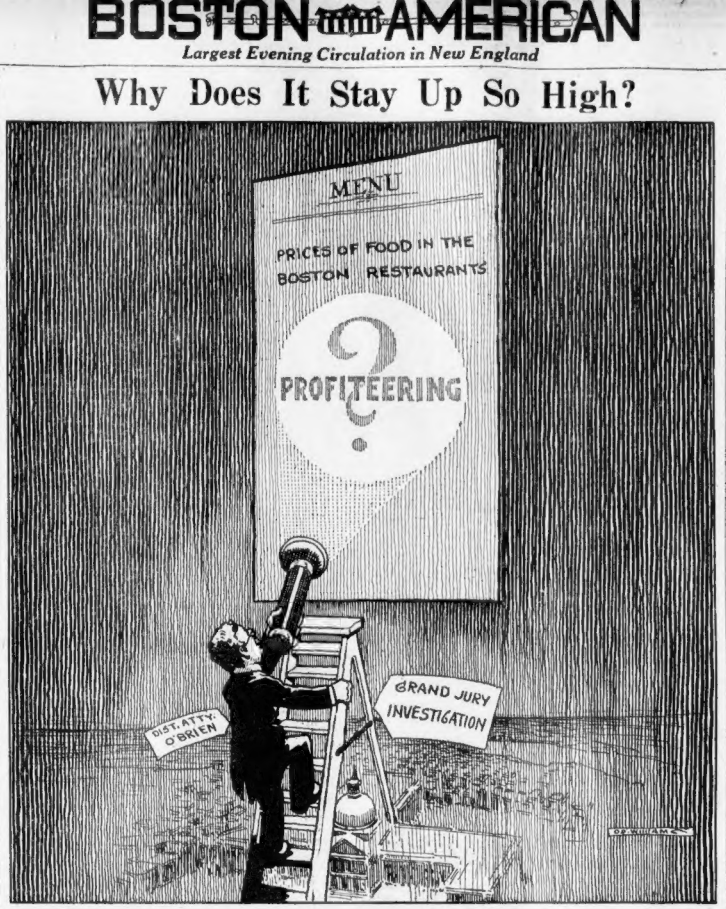
The cowardice bred in half-fed, half-starved bodies and ignorant brains, threatens the prosperity that says, "I am not my brother's keeper." Make better, stronger, braver human beings, and you will have a safer world to live in.

Mr. Hill's Valuable Aid

The Boston American wants to pay its compliments to Mr. Arthur D. Hill for his important service in promoting the passage of the law which gives the Public Utilities Commission the power to summon witnesses and put them under oath.

It is ridiculous that anybody has to contribute any service to passing so obvious a law, but since it was necessary, Mr. Hill did a good piece of work in helping to create a situation in the contest between the city of Boston and the Boston American on one side and the Edison Company on the other over the rate charges, which aided the passage of the bill.

Why Does It Stay Up So High?



Somebody's Birthday

Copyright, 1922, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.

If today is your birthday you should have an extraordinary sensibility for all that is beautiful and harmonious. The signs in the Zenith at your birth give you a marked artistic appreciation and unusual talents for drawing and for the arrangement of colors.

Whether you appreciate this fact or not, or whether your life is one of artistic or material success, is a matter of indifference to the destiny, but you may rest assured that you will never attain the heights of success in the ordinary walks of life that you would in a career of creative art.

You have a philosophy in love that will land you in sorry straits unless you revise it. For you there is some fascination in every one of the opposite sex you meet, and it amuses you to search it out. You are not actually a flirt, you simply play the game of hearts as you would any other game, for the merry time of it all, and when taken seriously you are surprised and embarrassed.

This carelessness may even lead you into an unfortunate marriage, particularly if you are still young, as you have a generous nature and one that cannot bear to cause suffering, so be forewarned and let your humorous see that you have your fingers crossed.

Today is favorable for using your personality with whomever you come in contact, as you will dominate in all activities. Your domestic life this year will be unsettled, changes will take place, and unless you guard against pettishness there may be serious quarrels.

A child born today will be clever in the arts, and should be given a chance to develop its talents.

Santi Raphael—Painter.
Hart Pease Danks—Composer.
John Pierpont—Poet.
Timothy Cole—Engraver.

U.S. HAS ANNEXED LIBERIA, FRENCH PAPERS CHARGE

By Universal Service.

PARIS, April 5.—Charges of imperialism against the United States, made by the influential Depeche Colonisle, have been eagerly quoted in French newspapers.

"The Liberian government," states the newspaper, "has just signed a treaty whereby America loans Liberia $5,000,000 at 5 per cent.

"The question of the loan is only incidental and the treaty constitutes a veritable annexation of Liberia by the United States.

"The United States, in case of non-payment of interest, will have the right to pay themselves from receipts of all nature; twenty Americans are to control Liberian finances; the members of this committee will not be liable to Liberian law; the committee will usurp all the financial functions properly belonging to the Liberian government, and will besides direct all government operations, including the evolution of the aborigines; furthermore no concessions may be made by Liberia without America's consent, and the Liberian budget may not be voted without the countersigning of the commission.

"The United States reserves the right to veto the appointment of any Liberian official, including the president of the republic, and the entire government and army of Liberia is to be reorganized and controlled by the United States. In respect to the army, its officers will be Americans.

"Evidently this is no protectorate, but a treaty whereby Liberia becomes purely and simply an American African colony."

Fears are entertained in some French papers that future loans by America to other countries abroad, including allied nations, may be stipulated on the same conditions.

"We have the right to be astonished at this new policy of colonial intervention, contrary to the Monroe Doctrine, now adopted by the United States," asserts the Echo National, newspaper founded by Georges Clemenceau.

"The French government, whose territory in Africa borders on Liberia on three-quarters of that nation's frontiers, cannot remain indifferent to this American invasion of Africa.

"We are responsible for much of the development in Liberia; at Monrovia we have erected a powerful wireless station, where we keep a small hospital. Furthermore, we have long studied a project of a railway to traverse Liberia and all the Ivory Coast.

"If we are well informed, the Minister of Colonies has already demanded that the Quai d'Orsay make representation on this subject to the United States government."

WHERE ARE YOU TRYING TO MAKE A GOOD IMPRESSION?

Mr. Married Man, why are you so anxious to make others believe that you are a liberal man, when you are making purchases while with your wife, and then complain so bitterly about expense when you get her car alone?

You like to say, with a wave of the hand, to the saleswoman showing you several articles, "Oh, give us the best you have; I don't believe in cheap stuff."

Why be extravagant to make yourself a good fellow with some one who would not lift a finger to do anything for you, and then scold your wife at times when you think she has been extravagant?

Ever think of it that way?

She is the one for whom you should desire to appear in the best light.

It were better that she than outsiders have a good opinion of you. Understanding and education are needed by some folk to get them to see just how foolish they appear to those whom they wish to impress.

Staying in Bed Dangerous

LONDON, April 5.—The peril of lying in bed is one of the latest ideas of the doctors. "Get up and move about" is the prescription.

Dr. R. P. Rowlands, surgeon to Guy's Hospital, London, is the apostle of the "don't lie in bed too long" creed. He expounds it vigorously in the British Medical Journal.

It is people who have undergone operations who are in peril if they stay in bed too long.

"It cheers a patient," states Dr. Rowlands, "to know that he may move about as much as he likes in bed from the first, have the freedom of the room after four days, of the bath after seven days and may take short walks in the open after ten days."

Appetite fails.
Digestion flags.
Action of the intestines becomes sluggish.
Risk of clots of blood forming increases.

All these are reasons against lying too long in bed, and Dr. Rowlands says that, as regards the healing of wounds, years of observation have convinced him that "complete rest is unnecessary, and even harmful by interfering with general and local circulation and nutrition."

Fractures of the ribs always join promptly and well, he states, in spite of the inevitable movement of the fragments, and "gentle movements of wounded soft parts do not hinder, but help the process of healing." One of the evils of the lying-in-bed system is that it deprives the patient of some of the benefits of fresh air, light and sunshine, "which have a most stimulating effect on healing a body and mind."

After Amundsen has made a successful flight to the North Pole and back, we shall doubtless hear some more about proposed trips to the moon; but the trouble with such things is that there is no chance to sell admission tickets to see the fatal outcome.

NEW GIRL IS POSSESSED OF MANY VIRTUES

By Winifred Black

Copyright, 1922, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

THE world's changing, girls.

There's no use talking, the world's changing—and we are changing with it, you and I and the rest of the women.

Changing so fast that it makes you dizzy to think of it.

She talks too loud and she talks too much, and she comes so close to swearing that it would make an old-fashioned man of the old school shiver to hear her. She smokes, and if there was anything to drink, she'd drink.

She tells queer stories, oh, very queer, and laughs at peculiar jokes—half the time I don't think she understands them, really, but she pretends to, anyhow. And she rouges and paints her lips, and picks her eyebrows and hunts around for false eyelashes, and wears her hair in the queerest kind of picture poster way—and, oh, her pettiskirts! And, ah, where is the waist of her dress? But just the name, I don't believe she's half as bad as she looks—this new girl we're all trying so wearily to understand.

Head Swimming

Her head's swimming a little—that's all. Just the way it used to swim when she whirled round and round in a circle, or jumped rope too fast, or flew too high in the swing at the Sunday school picnic.

And after all, she has her virtues—brand new virtues.

She isn't afraid of mice, either, and not so awfully afraid of snakes when you get right down to it—and she can take care of herself when she really wants to—can the modern girl, almost anywhere.

There's a strange case going on in the courts—the case of a man past middle life who had accused his wife of dreadful things because he wants to get a divorce from her—who knows exactly why?

The wife's picture is in every newspaper in the country, and so is the husband's—and so are various and sundry other persons more or less intimately connected with the whole sordid, miserable business.

Women Stand Together Now

Ten years ago every woman who heard that story would have been inclined to side with the husband, and say:

"Where there's so much smoke, there must be some fire."

Today, the women of this country are solidly with the woman in the case. They don't believe the stories the man has spread about her and they aren't going to believe them, either, unless they're proved to be absolutely true.

Let's pray for common sense and balance, and good judgment and charity, and kindness of heart to help us to get through these days with some measure of credit.

Dedicated Square

Editor Boston American:

Where does the responsibility lie for the disgraceful scenes at many of the squares dedicated to those boys who have paid the supreme sacrifice? Are they so soon forgotten by those whose duty it is to keep fresh in the memory of the people the sacrifices of these brave lads?

Go by any dedicated square with a wreath on it and note the dilapidated condition which exists in nine cases out of ten.

The ex-service men fought hard for the privilege of dedicating those squares, and now that the objective is reached they appear to say "finis." I say: "Pas finis—LET'S GO!"

GREATEST INTEREST IN WHOLE WORLD

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

PHILOSOPHER'S Conundrum: What is the greatest interest in the whole world? Answer: You!

Whether you are suffering from overweening egotism or you are the victim of immodest humility, the fact remains that YOU are the very core of the universe—Your Universe.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, with characteristic jocularity, once referred to Boston as the Hub of the Solar System. And Boston, with becoming modesty, admitted it. Ever since that time, needless envy has charged the American Athens with regarding herself as the Hub of the Universe.

As a matter of fact, the solar system is a sufficient sphere for "The Hub." No other city, town, village or hamlet should be envious of Boston. For Oshkosh and New York, Yokohama and Pekin, Doorn and Berlin, Paris and London are equally with Boston the nub of the hub of the solar system!

It all depends upon the point of view. Wherever You are is the beating heart of the world.

Religious Ethics

You are psychically so constituted that you stand at the very centre of things. And the world revolves around you. Neither you nor the world can help it.

Religion and ethics disapprove of this egocentric attitude. Religion enjoins humility upon you. Ethics wants you to be more concerned for others than for yourself. But psychology recognizes the naturalness and the supremacy of your self-interest.

The Ethical Culturist insists that it is just as easy to teach that altruism, the thought of others, is the basis of morals.

Just as easy to teach it, perhaps; but not as easy to have such teaching accepted and practiced! Here is a scientific fact to be faced and dealt with. There is no more use in fighting it than there would be in picking a quarrel with the law of gravitation.

Psychology does not really conflict with ethics or religion. Truth is one always and everywhere. A truth of one department of human knowledge or interest is never in conflict with a truth in any other sphere.

Discrepancies are only seeming and are subject to friendly conciliation. If psychology says that You are the centre of your universe, it then stands aside while ethics and religion take you in hand.

Before ever the animal-that-was-to-be-human knew of religion or ethics, each specimen of the species was aware of self, as is the rest of animate nature. When duly that animal became Man, we also came gradually under the sway of ideals and injunctions.

The sense of self remained as the central fact of consciousness, but religion makes us ask modestly: "What is man that Thou are mindful of him?" Ethics, in turn, says that one man is no man, that we are really human only as we enter into relations, and that, therefore, the moral centre of gravity is not in yourself, but in the race.

Psychology says: You are as you are. Know Yourself! Ethics says: Thus and so you ought to be; strive to become at one with your Fellowbeings! Religion says: You are a child of God; bind yourself to God and be like Him!

In this article we are actually concerned only with the psychological aspect of the human being. From that point of view, we are just conscious beings.

Answer Honestly

If you answer the philosopher's conundrum honestly, you will answer it correctly: "I am to myself the greatest interest in the world." Actually no one and no thing interests you more. However, that is not the end of your story, but only its beginning.

Even at that, you probably have not made a good start. Psychology asks you to know yourself. Do you?

Have you stopped to marvel at even your physical mechanism? Do you know that you are the most wonderful machine in existence? Have you ever pondered the miracle of speech as a means of expressing thought and feeling? Have you ever paused in the presence of yourself as a thinking and feeling being?

Have you felt wings play at your shoulders as you tried to relate yourself, in aspiration, to the essence of the meaning of all life?

Perhaps you are inclined to regard all this as foreign to you. But you should not. For self-knowledge and self-reverence are the very heart of the significance of democracy.

If we are to have, under democracy, an organization of society on the basis of respect for the individual, that individual—YOU—must have self-respect.

And you cannot properly respect yourself if you take yourself thoughtlessly for granted.

Therefore, please accept this re-introduction to the heart of the hub of the universe—YOU! And get acquainted!
